POSING AS ADOLPHUS BUSCH III, ILLINOIS MAN HELD IN DENVER

DENVER, Jan. 7.—Masquerading as Adolphus Busch III, and dressed as a person of great wealth, John Ray Dew of Belleville, Ill., tonight was arrested here by the police and charged with obtaining money under false pretenses. That Dew had operated on the Pacific coast was evident, said the police, from the contents of letters found among his possessions. One letter was signed by Miss Wilma Myers, said to be of a well-known Los Angeles family, and in this letter Miss Myers said she would give Dew "one more and last chance," and that her father believed in him in spite of his difficulties in Los Angeles.

Dew declared tonight that his father was a wealthy merchant of the Illinois town. He would tell nothing of his real life, and the city detective department is endeavoring to learn more of him in the belief that he may have had a police record.

While in Denver Dew stayed at one of the fashionable hostelries, and, according to the police, was wont to purchase articles in local stores, tell the clerk that he was Adolphus Busch III and have them charged to him. He was charged specifically with obtaining a relatively small sum of money from a curio store.

Anna Gould Appeals From Rota Tribunal

ROME, Jan. 7.—Cardinal Vincenso Vannutelli as prefect of the Segnatura tribunal has called a meeting of the high court for next Saturday to decide the appeal of the Duchess de Tallyrand, formerly Anna Gould, from the verdict of the Rota tribunal annulling her marriage to Count Boni de Castellane.

The Duchess de Tallyrand maintains that she was not regularly notified of the trial in which the decision was about to be given and for this reason was not able to present fresh evidence or to submit the depositions of witnesses to prove her contention. Whether the Segnatura tribunal accepts her point of view, a new trial will take place before the Rota tribunal when the duchess will be admitted for the purpose of placing before the court all new evidence. If the high court rejects her contention, the next decision of the Rota will be final; otherwise it will be still possible to have the case reviewed.

Aviator Would Fight a Duel; Yes, He Would Not!

PARIS, Jan. 7.—A duel is in prospect between Jules Vedrines, the aviator, and Rene Quinton, president of the French Aerial league. M. Quinton said tonight.

"I am awaiting M. Vedrines' seconds."

According to announcement yesterday Vedrines, who recently made a flight from Paris to Cairo was provoked by M. Quinton to give a distinction immediately to Henry Roux, his rival, who had made a similar flight, and who challenged Vedrines to a duel after Vedrines had struck him in the face.

A telegram was received by M. Quinton from Vedrines today as follows:

"I will not fight the anti-Frenchmen Roux, but will fight you as soon as I return to Paris."

Quinton affirms that he did not send an order for Vedrines to fight or return to Paris. He merely telegraphed a friend at Cairo, asking him to suggest to Vedrines that it would be well to accord the reparation demanded by Roux.

PARKER BEGINS HIS DEFENSE OF GOMPERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Alton B. Parker began the defense today before the supreme court of Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison against charges of contempt of court, of which the labor leaders were convicted in the courts of the District of Columbia. Mr. Gompers, the only one of the defendants present, sat with his wife throughout the argument.

Mr. Parker presented the case from an angle different from that submitted when the original appeal was argued in 1911. He explained the difficulties which have attended the briefs for the contempt proceedings were not designed to violate the district supreme court's boycott injunction issued in favor of the Buck Stove & Range company. He said they were a part of the campaign to induce congress to remedy the threatened danger resulting from the supreme court's decision in the Danbury hatters' case, in which it was held that the Sherman antitrust law applied to labor organizations.

The argument will be continued tomorrow.

The district supreme court held the labor men guilty of contempt for alleged violation of its injunction not to boycott the Buck Stove & Range company of St. Louis, Mo. Gompers was sentenced to jail for one year, Mitchell for nine months and Morrison for six. The United States supreme court set the sentences aside in 1911 because the court had treated the contempt as part of the injunction proceedings.

The district court then began all over again in an independent proceeding and imposed the same sentence. Later the court of appeals of the district reduced Gompers' sentence to one month in jail and the imprisonment of the other two men to fines of $500 each.

The labor men claimed the court had no right to try them a second time because of the statute of limitations limiting the time for prosecution of crimes to three years.

TAKE AN ELEVATOR TO HEALTH

Scientists Show That Air High Up Contains Little Dust and Bacteria

From the Boston Post.

A vacation in a skyscraper!

Two Harvard scientists, Prof. George C. Whipple of the chair of sanitary engineering and Dr. Melville C. Whipple, instructor in sanitary chemistry, have proved that when the doctor advises you to get a "change of air" you need only take an elevator to the top of a tall building or put out to sea a mile or so and you will have as complete a change of air as though you went half way around the world.

It has been the task of Doctor Benedict of the Carnegie museum to prove that there is no specific curative virtue in change of air, and that in many instances persons who exile themselves from home and friends for this reason are only laboring under a most erroneous impression.

Outdoor air, all over the world, is of exactly the same chemical composition, he asserts. The only difference is in the amount of dust—and hence bacteria.

At the foot of a New York skyscraper the Whipples found on a quiet day 221,000 dust particles in every cubic foot of air. A cubic foot of air taken at the fifty-seventh story yielded only 2,000 dust particles.

Then they analyzed a cubic foot of air taken above Long Island sound water and it contained 18,000 dust particles. This air was taken at a point several miles from shore.

No wonder the top floors of skyscrapers rent high. They are worth it in health alone.

"We hear of salt air of the seashore, mountain air, the air of the plains, each commanding specific claim to curative property," says Doctor Benedict. "The truth is that there is little if any real difference in the composition of air in different localities or climates, if the air be unconfined or open, and this difference is of no significance in a curative sense."

Professor Whipple, who is an expert on air purification, which he says is simply a matter of getting rid of the dust, says:

"No anxious have we been in the past to make sure that the carbonic acid did not exceed some illogical, arbitrary standard that we have overlooked the most patent and obvious need—cleanliness. People who work at dusty trades in dust-laden air, sicken and die of diseases that gain a foothold in the lungs, and we send our sick to the mountains and the seashore and spend our vacations in the relatively clean air of the wood and fields and upon the waters.

"We do these things because we want a 'change of air.' We feel that there is a vital chemical change in the atmosphere; we say we can recognize it. Of course, we can—just as one can recognize clean clothes by smelling of them."

AMERICAN RED CROSS SOCIETY EXTENDS AID TO FOUR COUNTRIES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Aid today was extended to the distressed districts of Japan, Mexico, Bulgaria and the United States by the American Red Cross society.

Five thousand dollars was cabled to the American ambassador at Tokio for relief work among the people of the northern section of Japan where a famine is reported. A similar amount was sent to the relief of the Bulgarian war sufferers. $100 was dispatched to Choix, Sinaloa, Mexico, where people are reported to be in distressed conditions because of food shortage; $10,000 was forwarded to the Central Flood Relief committee at Houston, Tex., and $1,000 was telegraphed to Presidio, Tex., for the relief of the Mexican wounded at Ojinaga.

WATER BARRIER TO PROTECT SCULPTURE

From the Philadelphia Ledger.

PARIS.—Bartholomy's masterpiece of sculpture, "To the Dead," in Pere-Lachaise cemetery, recently suffered repeated mysterious mutilations and a watch is now kept day and night.

Considerable restoration is necessary and a new form of protection has been arranged.

The monument is protected on the sides by precipitous grassy slopes, but not in front. The authorities are now putting a sheet of water in front which will prevent a too close approach, while adding to the effect.

AMERICAN CHARGE IS CONFERRING WITH LIND

Atlantic division, which are expected to leave their Mexican stations in the middle of February.

Asked as to the policy of the United States in maintaining a continuous patrol in Mexican waters despite the notice last summer from Senor Gamboa, Huerta's former minister for foreign affairs, that American war craft would not be welcome after October, Mr. Daniels replied merely that the United States did not recognize the Huerta government.

Federal Central Dead

PRESIDIO, Tex., Jan. 7.—General Jose Mancilla, one of the most prominent commanders of the Mexican federal army, today deserted, crossing over to the American side from Ojinaga, Mexico, and was held by the United States border patrol. Accompanied by his son, a captain, General Mancilla gave a fictitious name to the immigration officials but on being taken before Major McKenzie, commanding the United States troops, he admitted his identity and asked for asylum in this country. He discarded his sword on the Mexican side. Pending orders from Brigadier General Bliss, at San Antonio, he was held under custody. Although General Mancilla is the first officer of rank of the Huerta troops to desert his post for foreign territory, three or four hundred of the regular troops had previously deserted to this side.

General Mancilla, commanding a division of the regular troops as distinguished from the volunteers was known as a fighting general and a strong supporter of Huerta's military regime. He had been in many campaigns against the rebels and he accompanied General Salvador Mercado in the latter's picturesque flight with 4,000 soldiers from Chihuahua to Ojinaga. His leaving the army was said by the rebels to be the precursor of a gradual scattering to this side of more of the federals. General Mancilla's crossing leaves nine generals in the Ojinaga garrison. General Marcello Caraveo was permitted to cross several days ago on account of having been wounded.

Skirmishing Begins

Skirmish fighting between the outposts of General Villa's rebel forces and the federals began near Ojinaga today. The fighting was looked upon as the preliminary of a conflict to determine whether the rebels are to clear their northern territory of federals or whether the Huerta government is to retain a foothold.

That the federals intend to show resistance to the return of the rebel army to Ojinaga was indicated in the afternoon when General Salazar, commanding 1,000 volunteers, started out to meet the enemy in the direction of La Mula pass, one of the approaches to Ojinaga. Rifle firing and some cannonading could be heard from the direction of the pass, but the action did not exceed the proportions of a skirmish.

After a conference of the United States immigration officials, the Red Cross and military authorities all the American cavalrymen were vaccinated today on account of a few cases of smallpox which had been found among the 1,500 Mexican refugees now camped on this side.

HERMOSILLO, Sonora, Mexico, Jan. 7. The services of 4,000 Sonorans were offered today to General Carranza for his campaign against the Huerta government. The offer was rejected as have been all propositions to bring foreign fighting men into the Constitutionalist army.

A Canadian promoter proposed engaging the Russians. Letters from various promoters have been keeping two translators busy.

"I enclose a photograph," wrote one American filibuster. "You will see by my fighting eye that I will serve you well."

An English noncommissioned officer sent his picture, posed in front of a map of Africa which he said he had "helped subdue."

There were no movements of troops out of Hermosillo today nor was it announced when General Carranza would start to move his general headquarters to Chihuahua.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 7.—President Wilson of the United States, through Charge O'Shaughnessy, replied today to the New Year's greeting of the Mexican republic, sent to him through President Huerta, but did so indirectly, not using Huerta's name. To Senor Moheno, minister of foreign affairs, the American charge said:

"I am instructed by my government to transmit the greetings of the president of the United States to the Mexican people as well as his earnest good wishes for the prosperity of the Mexican republic."

VERA CRUZ, Jan. 7.—The American battleships returned to their anchorage outside port tonight after two days maneuvers and battle practice at sea.

The American consul at Tampico reports that apparently not more than 500 rebels are to be found within a radius of 50 miles of the city. The rebels continue to threaten San Luis Potosi, but it is believed that their main concentration is directed against Monterey.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 7.—According to President Huerta's decree, banks may issue notes to three times the amount of their paid in capital but they must not exceed the cash in bank, represented by deposits and reserve.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Jan. 7.—Temporary suspension of the Monroe doctrine and movement of the world powers in concert to end the trouble in Mexico as they did in China was advocated by Philip P. Campbell, representative in congress from the Third Kansas district in an address here today.

It had been rumored that the suit was to be filed by a man alleged to have acted as confidential agent in the campaign and who had not been successful in securing the promised remuneration for his services.

CORRECTIVE PLAN SAVES BOYS

Ventone Industrial School Reforms "Incorrigibles" from Juvenile Court

From the Billings (Mont.) Gazette.

Constructive correction of boys is being given a try-out by Joseph R. Jackson, principal of the Butte Industrial school. The experiment, he says, is successful, in that it does for the boy what a modern boarding school would do; sends him into the world not a prospective criminal, but a trained worker.

"We sympathize with the activities of boys who are sent to us from the juvenile court," said Mr. Jackson. "We do not confine their exuberance to a dull routine, but their hours of work and study and play are equally divided.

"The boys have their football team, their baseball nine and their basketball team. They play games with the Y. M. C. A. and the public school teams and they are generally victorious, too.

"The boys do not feel like prisoners, they work under the best possible conditions and the instructors use no more severity with them than a kind father would use in correcting his children. We keep boys there from four weeks to a year, and few leave without regret, some even with tears in their eyes.

"Nine acres of farming land are developed by the boys without outside assistance and they raise everything in the vegetable line, with the exception of potatoes. Boys sent to us from the juvenile court as incorrigibles have left the industrial school to enter the school of mines and from there they have gone to hold responsible positions. Many who were considered hopeless when sent to us are holding positions with the largest firms and banks in the state.

Mr. Jackson says the work of the juvenile court has been cut down half since the constructive method was initiated in the correction school. The school has a capacity of 150, but at present only 27 are confined there.

PAINTINGS INCREASE IN VALUE

Rembrandt's Portrait, Costing $520, Now Would Bring $100,000.

From the New York Sun.

PARIS.—The inauguration of the Andre Jacquemart museum, which Paris accepted as compensation for the loss of the Richard Wallace collection, draws attention to the rise in the prices of paintings since the collection was begun in the early '70s. Rembrandt's portrait then cost the collector $520. Rembrandt's "Disciples at Emmaus" only $8,000. Each of these would bring $100,000 at present.

Fragonard's "Model's Debut," which cost him $4,000, is worth $200,000 today. A Donatello cost him $400; a Goya $80, a gouache by Guadri $8. What would they bring now?

The entire collection is estimated by connoisseurs to be worth $10,000,000. Doctor Bode of Berlin believes it worth at least $30,000,000.

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

EAT LESS MEAT IF YOU HAVE BACKACHE OR HAVE KIDNEY TROUBLE

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poisons else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder disease. Adv.

SHERCLIFFE AGAIN ASKS FOR PARDON

Leadville Man, Convicted of Murder, Recommended by Warden Tynan

DENVER Jan 7.—Once more the case of Frank Shercliffe, convicted of the murder of John Walsh of Leadville in 1895 and whose career of alleged crime has startled many states of the union, is to be heard by the board of pardons and paroles with recommendation from Warden Thomas Tynan and other state officials that Shercliffe be given an absolute pardon and protection from further prosecution by any other state in the nation. Friday has been set as the day for hearing

In spite of a written confession, signed by Daniel L. Pickens of Denver, that he, not Shercliffe, killed Walsh, the Leadville saloonkeeper, Shercliffe has been held in confinement. It was said that Shercliffe's oath of vengeance against Thomas Dennison a prominent resident of Omaha, has been responsible for lack of favorable action on his application before the board of pardons and paroles which was filed and has been held in statu quo since 1911. Dennison, himself, it is said, was most active in the trial which led to Shercliffe's conviction and in securing postponement of hearings on the pardon application. Warden Tynan, however, has told the board that he personally will guarantee that Shercliffe will renounce his oath.

Career Interesting.

Shercliffe's career after the murder of Walsh was full of dramatic incidents. He left Leadville immediately after the murder and roamed over the southern part of the nation under the name of Sherman W. Morris. In 1905 he married a young woman from Iowa and she, Mrs. Mae Morris, obtained a divorce from him in Des Moines in 1910, two years after he had been arrested, tried and acquitted of holding up and robbing a Great Northern limited passenger train in Minnesota. This robbery occurred in 1908 and shortly after, Shercliffe was thought to have been identified in another highway robbery in Montana, and the authorities at Butte have wanted him for some time

After the trial of Shercliffe in Minnesota he was turned over to the Leadville authorities, tried and convicted of the murder of Walsh. He was sentenced to the state prison for 25 years, and while en route to Canon City, under care of Sheriff Bonner, Shercliffe jumped from a window of a speeding train and began his fugitive wanderings again. Three years later, in 1911, he was again apprehended in the south and returned to prison.

Warden Tynan declared in his letter of recommendation for pardon that Shercliffe had been a model prisoner and that his further detention would be a gross injustice. The warden believes him guiltless not only of the murder charge upon which he was convicted, but of all of the many other crimes which he was alleged to have committed, and urges the pardons board to specify, in event of his release, that he is to be made exempt from extradition.

WISCONSIN MARRIAGE LICENSE DEMAND NIL

New Eugenics Law Has Made It Almost Impossible to Secure Licenses

MILWAUKEE Jan 7 The immediate effect of the new eugenics marriage law in the first week of its enforcement which ended tonight has been to cut the number of licenses to wed issued to almost nothing Instead of the average number of licenses issued daily most county clerks reported that no requests for licenses had been made Others had refused several requests when the applicant had not presented the requisite physician's certificate that the man was free from disease

The Ashland county medical society today joined with the physicians of Milwaukee and other counties in agreeing not to make the required examination for the $3 fee provided by the statute The physicians asserted the law is clear in demanding a specific blood test which they said could not be made for $3

Publicity given statements by attorneys that the Wisconsin supreme court has recognized as a legal marriage any agreement between the contracting parties, resulted in an announcement by Julius G Kroken, register of deeds of Dane county that he would record common law marriage contracts for 10 cents each

"No three-dollar fee is necessary" he said, "only 10 cents each to register the contract. No marriage certificate no doctors, no pastors required The registration of the contract is necessary to obtain recognition in the courts"

Gretna Greens in Illinois on the south, and Minnesota on the west report that numerous applications for marriage licenses have been made by persons giving their residences as Wisconsin. The first marriage under the new law was reported today from Janesville when Marcien Hurtiboz of Chicago was wedded to his brother's widow, Mrs Adeline Hurtiboz of Winnipeg. Each was 67 years old

LONDON STUDENTS OF DICKENS STAGE MOST UNIQUE PERFORMANCE

LONDON, Jan. 8 (Thursday).—Students of Dickens met at Kings hall, Covent Garden, last night and gathered up the threads of Dickens' unfinished tale, "The Mystery of Edwin Drood." The entertainment took the form of court proceedings in which John Jasper was placed on trial for the murder of Edwin Drood, G. K. Chesterton, the novelist, acting as a judge. About midnight the jury rendered the following verdict:

"In the British spirit of compromise we adjudge the prisoner guilty of manslaughter."

A rider to the verdict left the prisoner to the judge's mercy and threatened those daring to question the verdict with committal for contempt of court.

The trial was held under the auspices of Dickens Fellowship and many of the leading literary men of London took part. Guineas were vainly offered even for a seat on the stairs. Bernard Shaw was foreman of the jury, and his sallies, with Chesterton's pompous gravity as judge gave a most enjoyable turn to affairs. Roars of laughter greeted the jokes as when, for instance, Foreman Shaw after listening to the prosecuting counsel's speech, bounded from his seat with the characteristic query to the judge:

"Do you imagine, my lord, that the convictions of a British jury are to be influenced by any amount of evidence?"

J. Cummin Walters, a well-known authority on Dickens, was leading counsel for the prosecution. W. Walter Crotch, author of "Charles Dickens as a Social Reformer," acted for the defense. He declared that there was every reason to believe that Drood was still alive and suggested that the key of the story lay in the opium habit of the two men. He urged that in the unexplained disappearance of Edwin Drood there was no evidence upon which to convict Jasper of murder.

The jury included such distinguished men as Jerome K. Jerome, Sir James M. Barrie, Sir Edward Russell, W. W. Jacobs, William De Morgan and Dr W. L. Courtney. Hilaire Belloc and Raymond Paton, who had been drawn, were not able to be present.

The wholly spontaneous character of the proceedings—the opposing counsel not having consulted each other or seen each other's briefs added greatly to the zest of the affair The trial had never been rehearsed. The stage in the hall was set as a court scene and all the witnesses, who included impersonators of Dickens' characters, appeared in the costumes of the period.

TELEPHONE COMPETITION IN NEW YORK IS A JOKE

PHILADELPHIA Jan 7—The question of the effect competition had upon the Bell and Independent telephone companies in parts of New York state was considered today at the hearing in this city in the government's dissolution suit against the American Telephone and Telegraph company The defense examined John U Gordon connected with the New York office of the Bell system who said competition in New York state had brought about a condition whereby subscribers becoming disgusted with the service had petitioned for the merger of competing companies

Henry Souther, connected with a Philadelphia industrial concern expressed the opinion that competition in the telephone business was no more logical than having two car lines over the same route Mr Souther also said that in many cases independent telephone companies had been organized simply to float stock and then sell out ballot boxes had been open four days for a vote on the strike question and that a count on July 5 showed approximately 7,680 votes for the strike and about 125 against the proposition He said the membership of the various locals was then about 9,000, approximately 1 200 having failed to vote because of absence or indifference.

OFFICIALS OF MINERS UNION OPPOSE STRIKE

These figures led the governor to inquire about the present strength He was given figures taken from the district council records showing a total of 8,815 men now in the district, of which 7 710 were on the relief rolls Hietala estimated that some 3 000 union men had left the district He explained the difference between the total membership and the relief roll as representing the men who had been able to support themselves without aid from the union and instanced the cases of 25 men who he said had made their first applications for strike benefits only last week

Reasons for Opposition.

Then the governor again plunged into the situation in the union before the strike and asked Mr Hilton why the national officers of the union had opposed the action

"Because they felt that a strike would entail great expense and considerable suffering and because it was felt that conditions all over the country were such that the time was inopportune for the inauguration of any such industrial disturbance was the reply

The governor told the union men that he expected to talk with the mine managers tomorrow and asked them to give him what they considered the crux of the situation

A typical reply came from James R Roach, personal representative of Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor

"The companies are today planning continuation of their fight against strikes unionism in concert" he said "Yet they ask the men to deal singly with a combination of corporations It strikes me that it is time for the companies to wake up

No man is more anxious for a settlement than I am," said the governor "I believe that corporations generally must come to the point where they will recognize organizations of their employes There is no question of the right of men to join such organizations and the only question confronting me now is whether I, as governor can find a settlement here that will be of the right sort and permanent Pledges Support.

Ask the company managers what they will do toward that end," suggested Claude O Taylor, president of the Michigan State Federation of Labor "If the companies have any offer to make you surely will hear of it," said Governor Ferris "Also I shall tell you if there is nothing of that sort in the air.

First on the governor's program tomorrow will be Victor Berger, Milwaukee, Seymour Stedman, Chicago, and Charles Edward Russell New York, who arrived today to investigate the strike from the standpoint of the national executive committee of the Socialist party Their arrival was not received enthusiastically by union leaders who said that the strike had nothing to do with politics

We are here simply to investigate" said Mr Berger One thing is certain, whatever the governor may say a federal investigation is needed here

WASHINGTON, Jan 7 John R Densmore solicitor of the department of labor returned today from Calumet, Mich where he went to offer his services as conciliator in the copper strike and reported to Secretary Wilson that unless one side or the other showed some willingness to yield in its determination to stick to all present demands there seemed to be no prospect of peace

After a long conference late today Secretary of Labor Wilson asserted that there was no present intention of further effort by the department to bring about conciliation in the copper strike

Secretary Wilson instructed Mr Densmore to prepare a written report of his attempts at conciliation which will be made public within a few days along with the report of John A Moffitt who earlier went on a similar mission and of Walter L Palmer who went as an investigator for the government

The executive committee of the American Federation of Labor at its regular meeting Jan January 19 probably will consider the assessment of a tax upon the labor unions throughout the country to aid the copper miners five auxiliary divisions with an aggregate war strength of 292 000 men needing 174 batteries, or 696 guns The aggregate of the two forces would be 367,000 men or approximately two field armies, short of the force of 500,000 men. These two field armies will require 1,680 guns a piece or 3,360 guns The United States garrisons abroad have 86 guns

Noting that the militia has in its hands about 34 per cent of the guns it should have, the general added, to summarize, for the regular army and volunteers, we need 596 guns, for the militia 696 guns."

General Wood said the total appropriations up to October 1 last by the house military and appropriation committee provide for only 245,098 rounds of ammunition for the modern field guns, all of which ammunition will not be manufactured until June 30 next

Of this ammunition," he added, "we have at present in this country 186,508 rounds and for the 2 95 mountain guns 15 106 rounds, or a total of 201,614 rounds And this is all we have At Mukden in nine days the 1 204 Russians guns expended 250 000 rounds.

Output Very Small.

"The present daily output of the ordnance factories for three shifts running night and day is not more than 1 600 rounds The war department was obliged last year to equip part of the regular army with obsolete seven-inch howitzers and five-inch siege gun batteries material because of lack of sufficient ammunition for the modern guns

"The war department is trying to accumulate 1,292 field guns of which 753 have yet to be appropriated for and General Wood said it was not his idea that the country should be constantly armed to the teeth in preparation for war but that it should be reasonably prepared most decidedly so because these things cannot be made for years, the entire capacity of the country being now about 250 field guns a year"

He said he did not care so much whether congress gave the war department the money for a reserve of hats, clothes and shoes, as they could be secured at any time.

But," he continued, "you cannot make a large quantity of field guns and ammunition without taking months or years to do it We would be absolutely helpless if we did not have them No country can go into the field today without a liberal supply of artillery unless it goes in to be licked. And we are as liable to have war as anybody else"

Referring to the United States being a rich country, he said, "if we are unprepared for war, there would be more temptation for a country to strike us and if it makes up its mind to do so, it can strike us at any time"

These field guns wanted for a force of 500,000 men, the general asserted, would be used for defensive purposes as this country could not start to go abroad with an army of that size On the other hand, he said, it was hardly likely that any nation would send any smaller army than 500,000 or 600,000 men across the Atlantic ocean to this country, after disposing of this country's fleet, if ever such an event happened

LAND COULD NOT BE SOLD

From the Kansas Industrialist

The land ownership laws of Bible times were peculiar. For instance, land could be leased and released and traded and the title juggled generally, but every fifty years the land reverted to the original owner. In this article on rural life lessons from the Bible, W A Lippincott describes these peculiar conditions

The effort to keep the title of the land in the hands of the farming people in Bible times is strongly brought out in the laws concerning the year of jubilee the redemption of hereditary land and the conveyance of personal property It was legally impossible to sell farm land in those days The only law concerning the conveyance of real property to be found (Lev xxv, 15-16) shows very clearly that what was sold was the crops and not the land What was termed selling was in reality only leasing It was a temporary arrangement Here is the law

According to the number of years after the jubilee thou shalt buy land from thy neighbor and according to the number of crops until the next jubilee shall he sell it to thee If the number of the years be great thou shalt increase its price but if the number of the years be small thou shalt reduce its price for it is the number of crops that he selleth to thee

The year of the jubilee which was the fiftieth or the one following the seventh sabbatical year was one when there was a great homecoming People were not only invited but were required by law to return to their own farming community and at this time all land was released to its original owner This in Leviticus (xxv, 13, 28, 31) we find

In the year of the jubilee ye shall return each to his possession At the jubilee a poor man's land shall be released and he shall return to his possession Houses in villages which have no wall around them shall be reckoned as belonging to the fields of the country the right of redemption shall be released in the year of jubilee.

RANCHMAN KILLED IN FALL TO BOTTOM OF DEEP WELL

William Lovern of Chico Basin Victim of Accident; Wife and Children Witness Tragedy

William Lovern, a ranchman 42 years of age living 8 miles east of Chico basin, was instantly killed early Saturday afternoon when a rope by which he was being drawn from a well broke and he fell nearly 70 feet to the bottom of the hole. His wife and two small children and also a neighbor, Arthur Conrad, who was driving the horse used in drawing him from the well, were witnesses of the tragedy.

Lovern was a homesteader who had taken out a claim in township 12, range 62, section 49. He was coming to the surface in a large bucket when the rope snapped. The fall broke his back. No inquest will be held as death was plainly the result of an accident according to Coroner Lawrence F Keyle.

The old time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to darken gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good even color, which is quite sensible as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage

Nowadays though we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called Wyeth Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy 50 cents a bottle It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair taking one small strand at a time, by morning the gray has disappeared but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft luster and appearance of abundance which is so attractive, besides prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair Adv.

THE "TALLEST" DRAWBRIDGE

From the Engineering Record

A drawbridge which when open towers above the Calumet river in Chicago to the height of a 20-story skyscraper has been built by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad The length of its span 230 feet breaks all previous records for drawbridges of the "bascule" or tilting type The bridge is raised and lowered in exactly the way that the wooden gates at a railroad crossing are operated by the flagman to prevent vehicles from passing the tracks when a train is approaching

In spite of its ponderous mass the bridge is so delicately balanced that it can be raised and lowered as readily as a child tilts his "see saw" The average of four complete operations gave a raising time of 72 seconds and lowering time of 47 seconds

TEAM WORK AT THE CITY HALL

MAYOR M'KESSON'S circular letter to all city employes urging better co-operation in the work of the various departments and branches of the municipal government is a sensible plea. Every man who conducts a business, whether big or little, and every employer, knows the vital importance of team work. He insists upon it, not as a favor but as a duty which is essential to the greatest success of the organization. He will not tolerate an employe who, to gain some temporary personal advantage, pulls against his fellow workers. A working force in which each man followed his own personal inclinations would be as ineffective as a football team each of whose members tried to play his own individual game.

There is no reason whatever, except petty politics, why the rule of organized team work should not be applied as strictly to the business of administering municipal affairs as it is in private business. Yet the fact remains that in Colorado Springs, as elsewhere, the contrary condition generally prevails. The man elected to a public office regards himself as responsible to nobody in particular, unless it be to the political power chiefly instrumental in putting him there. The men holding appointive positions usually admit responsibility only to their immediate superiors. They are interested only in their own jobs and are unconcerned with what may happen in another department. This point is illustrated in the Mayor's letter:

Suppose you are employed in the water department as an irrigation man and you discover a burst pipe, or someone sprinkling out of hours, it would be your duty to notify the clerk in the superintendent's office of your discovery as soon as practicable. If, while so employed in the water department you found a broken ditch box or any other defect in the streets requiring attention, you should notify the street superintendent or the commissioner of public works and property of what you had discovered. And, if you should find anything needing attention in any other department of the city you should make it your business to notify the proper person of what you had found.

Suppose you are employed in the police department. It is your duty, not only to see that the ordinances of the city are enforced, but it is equally your duty to see anything needing attention in any of the departments of the city on your beat, and promptly to give notice thereof to the department having charge of the matter. The same duty of reporting matters needing attention devolves upon employes in other departments of the city and the mayor and the commissioners will expect all employes to be as faithful in the performance of this duty as they are in the performance of the other duties assigned them. If each employe of the city will render such assistance as he can to every other employe of the city and to the heads of the departments we will be able to secure that co-operation and team work which will bring results satisfactory to the people whose servants we are.

A moment's reflection will show that these things are not as trivial as they may seem at first glance. How often does a policeman stand idly by and watch some petty irregularity or infraction of the law, and do nothing because it is not specifically his business to do something. A dozen times a day things are left undone because some official or employe of the City decides that it isn't up to him, but to somebody else. Again, there is often jealousy of the authority of another department. For instance, the work of clearing snow from the paved streets would have been expedited if the Fire Department had loaned the Street Department a supply of hose with which to flush the streets when the snow was melting. But somehow the thing couldn't be, or at any rate wasn't, done, so the snow had to be laboriously shoveled into wagons and cars and hauled away.

The Mayor's effort to secure better team work ought to have the support of all of the officials and employes at the City Hall, for it means greater efficiency. A capable business man, running a private concern of equal magnitude, would get it in a jiffy or there would be a few employes looking for new jobs. It remains to be seen whether there is too much politics in the City Hall to prevent its application there.

"Republican Future Bright," says an editorial headline in the Pueblo Chieftain. It is a peculiarity of some fatal maladies that the patient always believes he is getting better just before he dies.

THE RETAIL COAL DEALER

THERE would seem to be only one objection to the acceptance by the City of the coal proposition submitted by Thomas E. Thomas at the meeting Tuesday night of the coal investigating commission. Certainly there can be no objection that the City will assume any undue risk. Under the Thomas proposition the City takes no risk whatever. Thomas is to mine the coal and sell it to the City at a fixed price; he would himself stand any loss there might be. The City is to make no investment of any kind; even the hauling could be done by contract. All the City would need do would be to employ a girl to answer the telephone and take orders.

The one objection is that if the City engages in the coal business, selling at the small price made possible by Mr. Thomas' offer, the retail coal dealers will be put out of business. This is, of course, unfortunately true. Every advance towards greater social efficiency has been marked by this same phenomenon. When machinery replaced hand work there was a social cataclysm. When factory replaced home industry in England thousands suffered. When the railroads came investments in stage properties were lost. The electric light seriously affected gas plants. Electric railways sent cable and horse lines to the scrap heap. Every economic change has meant, to some, great loss and often suffering.

And the one objection to the acceptance of the Thomas municipal coal proposition is this objection, that it will cause a loss to the retail dealers. The people of Colorado Springs will have to decide whether this loss will be offset by the lower price of coal sufficiently to justify the adoption of the plan. The question reduces itself simply to this: Whether the retailers render to the City sufficient economic return to justify the continued price of $4.50 for lignite coal, or whether the interests of the city as a whole will be better conserved by the acceptance of the Thomas proposition, with the price of $3.25 or even lower which it will make possible.

In the year 1912 only 1334 aliens became naturalized Britons. In the same year more than a million and a quarter foreigners came to the United States as immigrants, of whom probably one-half have or will become American citizens. The European belief that this is the glorious land of opportunity still has enough substantial basis to send more immigration here than to all other countries combined.

THE PRICE OF COAL.

To the Editor of The Gazette:

The modern version of an old saying runs, "Figures may not lie, but liars can figure." Far be it from the mind of the writer to make a direct application of this saying to the statistics furnished by the local coal dealers "union" concerning cost of coal production as compared with the offer of Mr Thomas to sell coal to our people at a price far below what these gentlemen say is the cost. But may we not safely conclude that in their desire to continue their business on as profitable a basis as possible, the local combination of coal producers and dealers has not had the incentive to be quite so frank and accurate in answering the questions of the 'coal investigation committee' as they would be if unhandicapped by the necessity of protecting private interests.

Mr Thomas and the other independents have effectively cut the ground from under the mass of self protecting figures supplied by the local coal combination and by their proposition to supply all grades of lignite coal at a price far below that now current, have focused the situation in a way that should delight the heart of every citizen who has no stock in the coal companies.

It would seem that as the curtain was about to fall on an investigation that was in many respects most farcical and ineffectual that the real heart of the matter had been reached at one step. The real drama begins. The next scene will undoubtedly be that wherein is shown the poor mother (Mr Coal Dealer) begging with the city council for mercy on her helpless child (our profits).

Every imaginable objection including supposed legal and unconstitutional reasons will be set forth to show why Mr Coal Dealer should not be disturbed in his business by this socialistic idea of providing coal for our people at a reasonable price. The best legal talent will be engaged to petrify the issue and delay the decision. If the council and in the end the citizens are that the present evil condition of affairs will continue. That is, unless there are enough citizens who are, but they now have a chance to strike a blow for their liberation.

It is now up to you, Mr Citizen, to say something and to do something.

EFFECT OF THE SINGLE TAX

To the Editor of The Gazette:

I heartily thank Mr Martin for giving me a chance to express my sympathy for those who will suffer by the proposed change in taxation. I think it as much a duty of each voter to consider these sufferers as it is to study the question itself so that his vote next November shall be an intelligent one.

The assessed value of land today about equals the assessed value of all other kinds of property put together. Therefore, if Mr. Martin's land is well improved, the single tax will keep him. If it is fairly well improved that is, if the value above ground (improvements) is equal to the ground value (economic rent), he will come out even. But if his land is idle or only partially used he will surely suffer unless he starts to improve.

No bonded security or any other form of activity can compare to a just contribution toward social val... The single tax is in the line given logical... but it involves some trouble to get at the... yet sixteen of thirty-seven European... which we are proposing to use for community purposes unless the owners possess at least an equal value of things useful (improvements or personal) which from now on will be freed from taxation.

THE BOSS

BY GEORGE FITCH

Author of "At Good Old Siwash"

The boss is a man who comes in at 10 o'clock and forgets to come back after lunch whenever the weather is decent enough for golf. He is also the man who has nothing to do when he is in the office except keep two stenographers busy and raise a Mexican insurrection whenever someone makes a mistake. The boss has a large, roomy desk, with nothing on it except his feet; and whenever a friend comes in he closes the door and they go into executive session until the latest stories have been told.

"The president of the company comes in and tells him about his latest fishing trip."

The boss rolls down in the morning in his automobile and wears one of those overcoats with naturally curly collars. He gets such a big salary that if he had to carry it home in dollars it would break his back. But all he does is figure out how to keep the office a little busier. This makes him so tired that in June he goes to Europe with his family for the summer. This compels his assistant boss to do his work and the assistant boss thereby gets a fine rest.

The boss is a good-natured chap at long range, and it is fine to see him let out one of those big 45-waist-measure laughs whenever the president of the company comes in and tells him about his last fishing trip. But when you have to go in on the carpet before the boss and explain to him just why sales in your territory are slipping down, he is a cross between Nero and a Bengal tiger. Next to fancy dentistry, getting fired by a fat, good-natured boss is about the most painful thing on earth. It must be fine to be a boss and sail blithely through life over the necks of the perspiring crowd, with no one above him to tell him that after next Saturday he will be at liberty to go out and jump off the dock so far as the company is concerned.

The boss is a necessary evil, because if there wasn't one boss there would be a dozen, but our conservation congresses ought to figure out some way of making the boss work.

This is what the employe thinks of the boss. Tomorrow, brethren, we shall endeavor to discover what the boss thinks of the employe.

Another Human Document

BY RUTH CAMERON

I am sure no one who has difficulty in keeping expenses down can fail to be interested in the following letter. Anyone who has never had such trouble will please read some other part of the paper. But somehow I don't feel I shall lose many readers by that injunction.

"Ten years ago," writes my letter friend, "I was a young girl of 18 helping my father farm it. He was a poor man with 11 children and my two grandparents to take care of. I was next to the oldest. I met a young farmer who was also real poor and 2 years old, and we were engaged and not a dollar between us. I had just 15 cents and he borrowed $1 from a neighbor and we came to S——, where I had a married sister living. We took up board there and he got a job at 13 cents an hour. We boarded there for four weeks and then we were married. We had a little wedding even costing about $6 ice cream and cake etc. Then we went to housekeeping next morning.

We borrowed $10 and paid down on $100 for furniture and got a stove at $1 down and $1 a week. We paid $6 per month and received six plates and six cups and saucers and a pair of pillows for sending [illegible].

I [illegible] of my board's wages with which I went [illegible] and 10 cent store and bought me the necessary [illegible] and dishes and knives and forks. We were very happy. After a year or so of course a baby came and we had a chance to buy a house at $10 down and $10 a month, so we bought the house and lived there two years when another baby came. Then we had a chance to sell the house getting $200 more than we paid, so we thought ourselves rich as we had over $300 in the bank and everything we needed in a laborer's house.

We wanted to try farming on our own hook so we spent this money on horses and tools etc., and ran in debt for nearly $600. Well, at the end of three years farming we had nothing only our household goods and four babies. So we came back to S—— to live. Now I am a young woman of 28 and have four children, the oldest 8 and the youngest 3 and am sending two to school. We have bought a house again and are keeping up payments, taxes and repairs. We are getting $12 a week now. I do all my own papering, painting sewing, washing, mending, etc. We have always enough to eat and are happy, never having one cross word between us. Now why can't people who want to marry get along as we did at first. If you will kindly publish part of this letter I shall be glad to see it as every word is true."

GIBES AND GIBLETS

It's up to you Mr. and Mrs. Consumer: Do you want coal at $3.25? If so, tell your servants, the city commissioners.

Some people object to the Thomas coal proposition, they say Thomas is playing politics. All right; What if he is? If a man wants to play politics by cutting our coal bills $1.25 per ton, should we object? It's surely a kind of politics that isn't often played in these days of graft.

Foreign diplomats have given the United States a free hand in Mexico. But the "free hand" policy means only that the United States devises and bequeaths to Mexicans perfect freedom to hang, burn, shoot and torture such other Mexicans as they can get hold of.

Democratic women seem at timid as Democratic men. They won't indorse woman suffrage. A bold lot of "progressives," aren't they?

Chairman Hinebaugh of the progressive congressional committee says "our chances for a red hot fight in the coming campaign are exceedingly bright." That's a prognostication that surely can't be controverted.

The federal commission on industrial relations, after five days of solemn conclave, finds it isn't authorized to do anything to settle a strike, but that it isn't prohibited from investigating one. The Democrats surely didn't err in giving this commission so much power as to encourage dangerous federal centralization.

The prayer of the New York bankers for one big, preponderating regional reserve bank is one that can't be granted. The whole theory of the new currency bill is to prevent concentration of capital in New York.

Governor Johnson of California will ask for reelection. Cheerful news for Democratic and Republican aspirants.

William Jennings Bryan still insists that tariff reduction accomplished a wonderful amount of good. He's the only Democrat left who has the nerve to claim that.

You'd think, to hear some people talk, that there were deportations, constitutional outrages, in Colorado. As if the Democrats had not redeemed the state from Peabody!

The only difference home people can see between Peabody and Ammons is that the former had the courage of his convictions—while Ammons is entirely lacking in courage. He pretends to be doing one thing, while in reality doing just the opposite.

The city's business was $37,961.52 "in the red" last year. At that rate a revenue-producing coal business would certainly not come amiss.

A Pennsylvania Progressive congressman isn't satisfied merely with government ownership of Alaskan railroads. He's preparing a bill for the government ownership of all roads. Those Progressives certainly do progress.

Those corporation papers throughout the state staged a premature celebration, it now develops, over the supposed discovery by the Colorado Springs coal commission that coal couldn't be mined for less than $4.50 per ton. Here's betting they won't even mention the fact that Colorado Springs has a chance to get all the coal it needs at $3.25—or less.

Those who may not care to harp upon the tariff law may now blame anything they think is wrong upon the currency law.—Christian Science Monitor.

It at least gives the G. O. P. an opportunity to vary the monotony of their prognostications of ruin.

With the Denver News and the Colorado Springs Gazette backing the Progressives, the latter refusing any kind of conciliation it may be difficult to unite Republicans in Colorado, but when the evil of electing such men as Kenehan or Keating governor and reelecting Charlie Thomas is placed squarely before the Republicans and Progressives we believe sane politics will prevail.—Durango Herald.

The "sane politics" being of course for all citizens who wish to see Colorado redeemed to vote the Progressive ticket.

Morgan Act Seen as Ruse in Fight for Higher Rates

Bankers' Retirement From Railroads Will Relieve Them of Embarrassment in Demand for Increase

By Angus McSween in the Philadelphia North American.

WASHINGTON.—Members of the firm of J. Pierpont Morgan have resigned from several corporation directorates, principally railroads, so that they may not become an obstacle in the way of proposed advance in freight rates which the interstate commerce commission is considering.

That explanation may not accord with any put forth by members of the firm, nor with the attempt by politicians to construe the action of the great financial house as a victory for the administration.

But it is the explanation accepted by those who know what is going on, and who know that the masters of Wall street financiering are subordinating everything else to winning the fight they are making for the privilege of increasing the incomes of the railroads.

Increased incomes mean much more than the mere payment of dividends and operating expenses. They may mean increased capitalization and the handling of great volumes of new securities.

Due to Searching Questions.

As nearly as anything in the financial world can be traced, the unexpected action of the house of Morgan in withdrawing from so many corporations in which it has been dominant heretofore can be traced to the searching questions sent out by the interstate commerce commission more than a week ago to all the railroads.

The railroads are required by the commission to explain what are the affiliations of their directors and officers with other corporations deriving profit from dealings with the railroads themselves. They have been called upon to demonstrate in their replies that the railroads, asking for increased rates, are not themselves the victims of a system of interlocking directorates, through which the earnings of the roads are diverted to swell the profits of the other corporations in which railroad directors and officers are financially interested.

In other words the railroads have been told by the interstate commerce commission that if they are to be permitted to advance freight rates and thereby increase their power of taxation upon the movement of the nation's products, they must prove that the earnings of the railroads are being honestly and economically administered.

Queries Were Embarrassing.

When this list of questions was first sent out it became apparent that many of the railroads would find it difficult to meet the requirements of the commission. It was known that through the firm of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. and others the railroads were dealing with steel corporations, telegraph companies, financial houses, locomotive works, car building companies, supply houses and innumerable other concerns each of which was profiting from the business obtained from the railroads and that the same men, acting as directors of all the companies were in a position where they could see to it that all made profits and that the expense was borne by the shipping and consuming public.

What is true of the house of Morgan is true of other great financial houses, but the house of Morgan being at once the most powerful and the most conspicuous naturally presented the greatest difficulty to the railroads with which it is identified in answering the questions of the interstate commerce commission.

Its identification also with the wrecking of the New York New Haven and Hartford railroad had placed the firm in a position where it could not ignore public sentiment or hope that its dominance in the centralized control of all forms of business fed from the general bill the public pays for transportation, would serve other than as an argument against increasing that bill.

The interstate commerce commission had created this situation. The firm of Morgan and all the other firms that control railroads and sell railroad supplies and are engaged in holding under their own control all the big corporation business of the nation could ignore these inquiries from the commission, but to do so would be equivalent to an abandonment of their fight for increased rates. They did not want to abandon that fight, and therefore the only thing to do was to affect to comply with the requirements of the commission.

It was plain that the commission could not authorize an advance in rates if it were shown that those in control of a railroad were compelling that railroad to pay excessive prices for locomotives, cars, Pullman cars and everything else that a railroad uses, because the same men controlled all these other corporations and were buying from and selling to themselves with money taken from the public.

To prove to the commission that the directorates of railroads are clean and are working for the best interests of the roads and for other corporations it had become necessary that there should be a clearing up of the directorates themselves. In such a movement the firm of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. of necessity was compelled to take the lead.

Having been the most stubborn advocates of the doctrine enunciated by the late J. Pierpont Morgan himself, that "you cannot unscramble eggs," they were forced to realize that the scrambling of the eggs was likely to prove a positive detriment to themselves and consequently, that they must volunteer to do some of the unscrambling that had declared to be impossible.

It is seen in the list of corporations from which the members of the Morgan firm announce their withdrawal that the greater number are railroad corporations. When these corporations come before the interstate commerce commission with answers to the questions of the commission, they will no more have to explain anything with respect to the members of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co.

Other great financiers who have found it useful to be upon a great many boards in order that they might have a hand in the distribution of the great sums of money collected and expended by the railroads will probably find also that duties in connection with these manifold directorates impose a burden upon their time and they will give way to other men not so promiscuously occupied.

May Bring Increased Rates.

It is impossible to predict what will be the effect of the action taken by Morgan, and that which other members of the controlling combination are expected to take, upon the pending question of railroad rates. Possibly it will make the result an advance in rates. It will certainly produce such a result if the railroads are able to show that the administration of their great earnings honestly and efficiently still leaves a deficit to be made up in the operating and dividend paying income of the roads.

It will have little if any effect if it is shown to be merely a ruse to avert public sentiment.

The interstate commerce commission is entitled to full credit for all that has been accomplished. But behind the commission there is one man who is entitled to more credit than any other individual. This man is Louis D. Brandeis, now engaged as a legal adviser to the commission in the increased rate matter.

Mr Brandeis framed the questions sent to the railroads, and made it apparent from those questions that the railroads must come before the commission with clean hands if they are to obtain authority to increase their rates. He is making the most effective fight against centralized control of business that any one man ever made against such tremendous odds.

Mayor After "Team Work"

Mayor C. L. McKesson yesterday mailed a letter dated January 1, to every city employe, asking for "team work" that the city may be more efficiently served. The letter is as follows:

January 1, 1914.

To All City Employes:

I extend to you a cordial New Years greeting, and wish to express to you the appreciation of the mayor and the commissioners for the efficient service which you have rendered the city during the year just closed, and to request your cooperation along certain lines which, in my opinion, will assist in enabling us all to do more efficient work for the city during the coming year. The mayor and the commissioners believe that in order to secure the best results for each department and for the city as a whole that there should be complete cooperation between each of the several departments of the city, and in order to secure such essential "team work" it is important that each person in the employ of every department fully realize that he is first and primarily an employe of the city, and that it is his duty to do all he can to promote the welfare, not only of the department in which he is engaged, but of every other department and of the city as a whole.

For the Good of All.

It is to this duty of helping each of the departments of the city, whenever it is possible for you to do so, that I desire to call your attention to specially. When performing the special duties of your employment, you should be alert to discover anything requiring attention by any other person in your department, or in any other department of the city, and when you have found a thing or matter which needs looking after, you should, as soon as practicable, report your discovery either to the person in charge of the matter or to the head of that department. To illustrate: Suppose you are employed in the water department as an irrigation man and you discover a burst pipe, or some one sprinkling out of hours, it would be your duty to notify the clerk in the superintendent's office of your discovery as soon as practicable. If, while so employed in the water department you found a broken ditch box or any other defect in the streets requiring attention, you should notify the street superintendent or the commissioner of public works and property of what you had discovered. And, if you should find anything needing attention in any other department of the city, you should make it your business to notify the proper person of what you had found.

Points Out Duties.

Suppose you are employed in the police department. It is your duty, not only to see that the ordinances of the city are enforced, but it is equally your duty to see anything needing attention in any of the departments of the city on your beat, and promptly to give notice thereof to the department having charge of the matter. The same duty of reporting matters needing attention devolves upon employes in other departments of the city, and the mayor and the commissioners will expect all employes to be as faithful in the performance of this duty as they are in the performance of the other duties assigned them. If each employe of the city will render such assistance as he can to every other employe of the city and to the heads of the departments, we will be able to secure that cooperation and team work which will bring results satisfactory to the people whose servants we are.

I am relying upon you to do your part in this important work of mutual cooperation, and I trust that at the end of the year you may be commended in the words of the master: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

"May gladness tune Life's harp anew
And strike its sweetest chords for you"

throughout this year.

Sincerely yours,
CHARLES L. M'KESSON,
Mayor.

WOULD HAVE STREET CARS HEATED DURING THE WINTER

Council Has New Ordinance; Much Business Transacted at Meeting; Coal Contract Not Let

A new ordinance requiring the street car company to heat all cars used to a minimum of 50 degrees above zero, (Fahrenheit) whenever the temperature outside the car is 40 degrees above or less, was ordered sent to the printer by the city council yesterday. The measure was introduced by Commissioner Johnson and was voted against by Commissioners Eubank and Lawton. The ordinance, if finally passed, will be effective August 14, 1914, as this time limit was allowed in order to enable the street car company to install the necessary heating apparatus. The ordinance provides for a fine of from $5 to $100 and the men in charge of the car are held responsible providing the heating apparatus is in proper condition.

Much routine business was disposed of by the council. The liquor license for the drug store at 15 East Huerfano street was renewed. The ordinance reducing by half the tax on electric, telephone and telegraph wires and poles was finally passed. On recommendation of Commissioner Johnson, W. M. Michaels was appointed by Mayor McKesson as caretaker of the decorative street lighting system. The council granted the engineering department permission to purchase a motorcycle.

The department of public safety was authorized to purchase 1,000 feet of fire hose from the lowest and best bidder. Roy Ridenour was appointed assistant inspector of the electrical department by Mayor McKesson. The contract for lumber to be used by the street department for the next quarter was awarded to the El Paso Lumber company which was the lowest bidder.

Action was deferred on the bids for auditing the city's books until the mayor can confer with Commissioner Eubank. The bid of John H. Baker who audited the books last year was $500 while that of H. H. Mitchell was $450. Commissioner Eubank reported that the $100,000 issue of water bonds and $40,000 worth of city hall bonds had been disposed of.

Coal Bids Not Settled.

Bids for furnishing the city with coal were not disposed of, the council deciding to wait until Friday to award the contract. Consideration will be given to new bids made by Thomas F. Thomas for certain quantities. Other coal men will be given opportunity to put in new bids.

The annual report of Fred Roth fire warden, was presented to the council and placed on file. Roth gave a detailed report of his work during the year in preventing fires by guarding against the accumulation of rubbish. He inspected all basements in the business district at least once and sometimes twice a week.

WINTER NIGHT CLUB TO HEAR PROF. S. H. CLARK

Professor S. H. His subject will be "The Boy's Right to Culture." Professor Clark has given readings at Colorado college for three years under the auspices of the English department. This will be the first time he has addressed any of the clubs or social organizations in Colorado Springs.

Storm Helped Charities

Unemployed Given Work

That the great snow storm of early December was not without benefit to at least some of the community was brought out in the December report of Agen W. F. Worcester of the Associated Charities, read yesterday at the regular meeting of the executive board of that organization. Through the medium of the storm, numerous men were given work who otherwise would have been without it, through the winter months. According to the report, Colorado Springs has no army of unemployed, as not a single able bodied man has applied for work at the Associated Charities during the month just past.

The report follows in full:

The past two months have been exceedingly busy ones for the Associated Charities. The last of November was filled with the Thanksgiving work. Directly after this there is usually a small decrease in the amount of work required of the Associated Charities. This year, on the other hand, the first weeks of December brought us the heavy work caused by the severe snow storm. Following this came all of the work attendant upon the Christmas season and the Santa Claus letters.

Attention should be called to the one respect in which our work was lighter than during December of 1912, namely the homeless men. Up until the first of January we had practically no homeless men who were able-bodied, and in condition to work. Nearly every one who has applied has been afflicted with some disease that has incapacitated him. In this respect our condition is entirely different from that which prevails upon the coast. Our fear is, however, that within a month or two, the men who are now upon the coast, will be making their way eastward and we will be burdened with their care.

The storm of the first of the month had advantages that many calamities would not have had. Every man who was able to work was given employment at good wages. This relieved the situation and avoided a great deal of hardship that would otherwise have inevitably followed such a storm. Our greatest work was with families where the bread winners are women, who on account of the snow, were unable to get to their work.

The calls for provisions and fuel were very numerous. It was not a hard matter to relieve the situation as far as provisions were concerned. Arrangements were made with the grocery store that happened to be nearest for the relief of those who were in need.

With the coal, however, it was different. Its delivery was delayed in many cases and arrangements had to be made to borrow from neighbors, or have someone go to the coal yards and carry small supplies in sacks or baskets. We believe, however, that the situation was well cared for and that there was not a great deal of suffering that went unrelieved.

The Santa Claus letters were more numerous than those of other years. While visits were made to every family that was finally placed on the list, we did not feel that the same degree of need must exist before the presents were given as would have to exist if the Associated Charities was going to assist the family with fuel and provisions, or whatever the case might call for. Oftentimes it is the children of the man who works every day and at earns but a small wage, that have the least joyous Christmas. His earnings are just sufficient to provide for the family's absolutely necessary expenses, and there is no margin for Christmas presents.

The response from the public was sufficient to provide a Christmas for each family that we felt would not otherwise have one. Duplication of efforts were avoided as far as possible. In nearly all of the cases the name and addresses of children asking for Christmases, were given to individuals and to Sunday school classes, and these in turn made such provisions as they saw fit. Money, candy, toys, clothing, and a great many other things were sent directly to the office and these were sent out to those families, whose names had not been given to individuals and other organizations. The money contributed was used to buy clothing, shoes and such other things as the situation in the family called for. The response from the public this year was more generous than it has been in any former year.

During the month of December, we were obliged to assist two families and three individuals with transportation. In each instance, although the transportation seems large, it was by far the wisest course to take. The transportation was used to return people to their legal residences, and if the need had not been met in this way, our community would have been obliged to support these cases indefinitely, and of course, in the end at a much greater cost.

Four of the most expensive and most troublesome cases that the Associated Charities at the present is having to care for, are cases which have no claim upon our community for assistance other than the ties of claim of humanity. There should be some way in which we can protect ourselves from this tremendous drain upon the resources of the community. It is not a subject that we can solve locally. The remedy demands state action, if not federal action. If we were not subjected to this expense, we would have a lot of our time, energy and money saved for the upbuilding of our resident families.

In connection with the other work of the office, we had charge of the Red Cross seals which were sold for the benefit of Sunnyrest sanatorium. The sale was much larger than we anticipated, $508.63 being derived from this source. Sixty five per cent of the money went to Sunnyrest.

CHANGE TIME OF ELECTION OF CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Would Have Annual Meeting in November and Vote by Mail; to Drop Those Who Do Not Pay

The committee on by-laws of the Chamber of Commerce recommended to the old and new board of directors at a meeting yesterday that the time of the annual meeting of the chamber be changed from January to the third Thursday in November. The committee further recommended that the members be allowed to vote by mail. The recommendations will be submitted in the form of an amendment to the by-laws for a vote of the membership at the annual meeting January 20, when the new directors will take office. It is expected that the new ruling will carry without opposition as the election of officers in November will facilitate the work of the organization by avoiding the delay between the time of election of the new officers and the time they are expected to take up their work.

The question of delinquent members was discussed yesterday and at the time of the annual meeting January 20, a large number will be dropped unless they pay their dues by that time. The applications of T. L. Rippey and the Remington Typewriter company for membership were received and accepted.

President Perkins was authorized to appoint a committee to attend the Farmers Congress at Fort Collins, January 15-16. A resolution was also passed favoring the bill of Congressman Keating to permit visiting autoists to camp on the highways of the state and in the national forest reserves.

COLORADO'S DEVELOPMENT FROM ALL POINTS OF VIEW

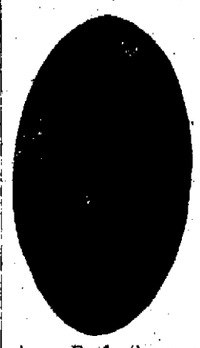
Commercial Executives to Discuss State Work at Good Roads Meeting Next Week

Colorado's greater development along every line will be the main topic for consideration at the annual meeting of the Colorado Association of Commercial Executive which will be held here January 17. Representatives from the commercial organizations in every part of the state will gather to discuss ways and means by which their association can render more effective and united service. In view of the fact that the state good roads association convention meets in Colorado Springs January 15 and 16, it is expected that the meeting will bring not only the secretaries and executive officers of the commercial organizations, but the presidents and directors as well, thus forming a congress of men vitally concerned in the welfare of the state.

One of the subjects of greatest importance will be the part Colorado is to take in the California exposition in 1915. A special committee from the Colorado Association of Commercial Executives, of which J. K. Jenkins, general secretary of the Pueblo Commerce club is chairman, will make a report. This committee will meet in conference with Governor Simmons and representatives from every part of the state the evening of January 15. C. L. Scholtz, who made a trip to California for the Denver chamber of commerce, will give an address on this subject. Up to the present time there has been no definite move toward Colorado's participation, and it is hoped that as a result of these meetings a concrete proposition may be worked out.

The commercial executives will also confer with the Al Colorado committee whose mission is to promote more friendly relations between the various sections of the state. The following topics are announced on the program: "Mining Development," Commissioner T. R. Henehan; "Advertising a State," R. A. Turner, advertising agent, Colorado & Southern railway; "How the State Land Board Can Cooperate to Settle Colorado," Registrar V. T. Hoggatt; "The Mission of the County Agriculturist," W. H. Lauck, agricultural agent for El Paso county; "Commercial Organization Work from the Director's Viewpoint," A. L. Branson, president Trinidad chamber of commerce; "The Secretary's Desk," Thorndike Deland, secretary Denver chamber of commerce.

Prof. M. J. Sweany to Take Chicago Course



Mark J. Sweany, professor of history, civics and economics in the High school, and well known in educational circles throughout the state, will leave on January 26, for Chicago university, where he will complete his work for the degree of doctor of philosophy. Prof. Sweany took his B. A. degree at Michigan and his M. A. degree at Harvard. He will return to the High school next fall. This is his fourth year in the High school. Arrangements have not yet been made for an instructor to take his place at the High school during the coming semester.

Sheep Lives 24 Days Buried in Snow Bank

According to Joseph Wienlick, a ranchman living seven miles east of Calhan, one of his sheep lived for 24 days in a snowbank without any food. The animal was caught in the storm of the first week of December and tunneled part way through the snowdrift but was unable to escape. It recovered when given food and water and is now in good condition.

State Demands Fee for Motor Licenses

Since the 1914 motor vehicle licenses have been placed on sale at the office of the county clerk, numerous complaints have been made against the charging by the county clerk's office of an acknowledgement fee of 25 cents for each motor vehicle application, but under the law, this fee must be collected and turned over to the county. According to the laws of the state, the clerk must charge 25 cents for each acknowledgement and the money must be turned over to the county. It is claimed that in some counties the clerks have been putting the fee into their own pockets but when their books are audited, there will have to be an accounting.

The state motor vehicle laws read that the application for the registration of motor vehicles shall be made annually to the secretary of state or to a lawful agent appointed by him. The owner of the machine shall sign the application which must be verified by oath or affirmation. According to the laws of the state, the taking of acknowledgement shall require a fee of 25 cents in each case.

HENRY ELLITHORPE DIES AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

Henry Ellithorpe, aged 59 years and for 20 years a resident of Colorado City during which time he served one term as mayor, died last evening at 15 North Fifth street. He had been ill with pneumonia for several days and the end was not unexpected.

Mr. Ellithorpe was mayor of Colorado City in 1903 holding the office only one term. He had been conducting a jewelry establishment for the last 15 years but had no property outside of his store. He was not married and is survived by a sister, Mrs. Pearl Pond, with whom he lived and a married sister in Denver. He was a member of the Woodmen of the World.

No arrangements for the funeral have been made.

CONDITION OF DR. PERKINS SHOWS LITTLE IMPROVEMENT

At a late hour last night, the condition of Dr. Pliny H. Perkins, who is critically ill at the St. Francis hospital, was unchanged.

CURED HIS RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 863 Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured, for may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation. Adv.

First Congregational Holds Year's Meeting

The annual meeting of the First Congregational church was held last night after a supper served in the parish house. President W. F. Slocum of Colorado college acted as chairman and the following officers were elected: Edward S. Parsons and Edwin C. Schneider, deacons to serve three years; Mrs. F. H. Loud, deaconess; E. W. Davis and F. F. Faust, trustees; D. C. Jencks, clerk; George Alter, head usher.

The treasurer reported a budget of receipts and expenditures in 1913 of $6,600, closing the year without debt for current expense. The chairman of the board of trustees made a statement concerning the debt of $7,600 incurred in making extensive repairs and improvements in the summer of 1910. The debt had been reduced to $3,200 January 1, and that amount was raised four days later and the church entered the new year without indebtedness.

The woman's union and underwear to raise $900 during the year and had secured $1,025. The Young Women's Auxiliary had raised more than $100 for various objects. The following officers were elected by the Sunday school: Mrs. C. W. Pitman, superintendent; Miss Ruth Benson, assistant superintendent; Martin Barney, secretary; Leroy Burgess, assistant secretary; Miss Mabel Jencks, treasurer; Miss Clara Perley, pianist; Miss Frances Rouse, chorister.

Dean Florian Cajori reported for the brotherhood an exceptionally successful year. The clerk's record showed a membership of 446.

ANNUAL ELECTION OF VISITING NURSE ASSOC'N

The Colorado Springs Visiting Nurse association held its annual meeting yesterday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. and the following officers were elected: Mrs. A. L. Drummond, president; Mrs. W. A. Otis, first vice president; Mrs. John C. Shields, second vice president; Mrs. James F. Burns, third vice president; Mrs. Leonard E. Curtis, secretary; Dr. Mary R. Noble, treasurer.

CHRIST UNIVERSALIST CHURCH ELECTS OFFICERS FOR YEAR

The annual meeting of Christ Universalist church was held last night at the I. O. O. F. temple. The election of officers resulted as follows: J. R. Harnum, moderator; H. S. Spencer, clerk; Mrs. I. G. Howard, treasurer; Charles Burte, F. A. Spencer, O. W. Beck, G. W. Davis and I. J. Howard, trustees; Gifford Spencer, superintendent Sunday school. A unanimous welcome was extended to the Rev. Charlotta D. Crosley to remain as pastor for another year. Reports from various departments of the church showed that the past year has been the most successful in the history of the local church. The new year is begun with no indebtedness.

"ADELE"

The attraction at the Opera house next Saturday, will be "Adele," the biggest musical comedy success of the present season. Its presentation here will be marked by the best singing organization seen on tour since the days of the famous "Bostonians."

The story of this comedy is based on the very elastic divorce laws of France. At the beginning Adele is found to be the daughter of a manufacturer of canned goods, desperately in love with Robert, son of her father's business rival. Parental objections based on the business rivalry beset the two young lovers.

Madam de Neuville, head of a school that Adele attended, plans to have her pupil marry Baron de Chantilly with whom she is actually in love. She sees in the marriage and immediate divorce a way out of the trouble, for under the law parental objection carries no weight if the offspring once weds. Her plan carries out, but not as she wishes, for the Baron finds soon after the wedding ceremony that he is in love with Adele and that he will not be divorced. This situation furnishes a new series of complications which develops an unlimited amount of humorous scenes and creates a farce comedy bright and snappy that could stand alone without the aid of a single bar of music.

"WHAT HAPPENED TO MARY"

"What Happened to Mary," which comes to the Opera house next Monday, is what ought to happen to every girl with a clean mind, an honest heart and a shrewd intelligence. The play is by Owen Davis and was suggested by the short stories which are appearing serially in a leading magazine. Their popularity was first recognized by the moving picture producers, and so successful were the "Mary" pictures that in less than a month the leading theatrical producers were bidding for the dramatic rights.

"What Happened to Mary" is a sweet pastoral comedy in which the charm of natural simplicity is intertwined with the duplicity of city life. The play abounds in natural situations and is told with a directness that goes straight to the heart. "What Happened to Mary" is being presented en tour with an excellent cast of players including Anne Bradley, Maud Cooling, Charlotte Crawford and Lillian Allen.

886 CASES HANDLED BY HUMANE SOCIETY

Annual Meeting Yesterday; Mrs. Goddard Reelected President for 1914

Mrs. Francis W. Goddard was yesterday reelected president of the El Paso County Humane society at the annual meeting of the organization held in the office of Chas. T. Sorting Agent W. S. Reynolds submitted his annual report in which it was stated that a total of 886 cases were investigated by the society in the year 1913. Mrs. Goddard as president also submitted her annual report and plans were made to carry along the work of the society for the coming year. George Rex Buckman was elected an honorary life member in recognition of the service he has performed for the society in past years.

Officers Reelected.

W. S. Reynolds was elected and other officers were reelected as follows: Mrs. Francis W. Goddard, president; vice president, Chas. T. Ferris; secretary, Butler Williamson; treasurer, F. M. McMahon; directors, Mrs. Spencer Penrose, Mrs. P. A. Loomis, Mrs. E. E. Nichols, Samuel H. Kinsley, Dr. J. H. Brown, R. L. Holland and W. F. Richards. The officers are also members of the board of directors.

The report of Agent Reynolds follows:

Colorado Springs, Colo., Jan 7, 1914. To the President and Board of Directors of the El Paso County Humane Society.

Ladies and Gentlemen: I respectfully herewith submit my report as humane officer for the year 1913, showing the number of cases investigated by me and the work done during the year.

Number of cases investigated during past year	886
Men	139
Women	142
Children	366
Boys	200
Girls	166
Cattle	758
Horses, mules and burros	570
Dogs and other small animals	122
Camels	2
Buffaloes	2
Birds	3
Poultry	229
Horses ordered out of harness	88
Number of warnings given	245
Animals humanely destroyed	114
Horses destroyed	38
Cattle destroyed	9
Dogs and other small animals destroyed	67
Cases of nonsupport	16
Cases taken into court	27
Cases won in court	20
Cases lost in court	4
Cases continued	2
Cases dismissed	1
Girls sent to the State Industrial school	2
Children sent to state, private, detention home and hospital	42
Miscellaneous cases investigated	31
Fines collected $4.00.

The work of the society is continually on the increase, numerous complaints and cases coming up through the city and county government and courts which are referred to the Humane society, hence miscellaneous cases are increasing very fast.

Extreme cruelty to animals is on the decrease, and I am in hopes to still better the conditions the coming year.

The winter so far has been very severe on stock and has made a great deal of extra work, but we have been very fortunate in the cities as most of the suffering has been in the country district.

Our society has been able to relieve a great deal of suffering among the poor by the prompt response of the members and friends of the society and the commissioners of El Paso county, all to whom much credit is due.

The new Detention home is a great help, and enables us to care for our dependent and neglected children, until homs can be found for them or some disposition can be made of their cases.

In the discharge of my duties I have been ably assisted by our president and members of the society, district attorney's office, police department, sheriff's office, county commissioners, District Nurses association, Dr. Dickey, the society's veterinary, and Dr. Savage, to all of whom I extend my thanks. Respectfully submitted.

W. S. REYNOLDS,
Humane Officer.

Mrs. Goddard's Report.

Mrs. Goddard's report follows:

To the El Paso County Humane Society:

One of the remarkable developments of the last 25 years has been the growth of humane societies. For a long time the dumb animals bore in patient agony the cruelties inflicted by the ignorant or brutal master and no voice was lifted to protest against such treatment.

In 1810 a movement in this direction was started in England, which was the first country to recognize the need of such legislation, but to Henry Bergh belongs the credit of awakening, in 1866, the people of America to the terrible condition of affairs and of founding the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, in New York city.

Now the spirit of kindness has spread to other lands until the countries which we associate with the idea of brutality have responded to the call of the dumb creatures, and France, Italy, Spain, England and even the Philippines and the West Indies have some organizations to carry on the work.

Not only are there many state societies, but independent societies have been formed which like our own, work in harmony with the state organizations and each one is made more efficient by the existence of the other.

The idea of the humane society is best expressed by the name under which our charter was granted, which shows that it exists for "child and animal protection" and it has established its title by the record of the cases of children cared for by our humane officer.

Usefulness of the Society.

The usefulness of the society is not limited strictly to the care of children and animals. A vigorous protest was sent to Cheyenne and to Governor Carey of Wyoming, in which we were ably seconded by Mrs. Belais and Mr. E. K. Whitehead of Denver, against the cruelties practiced at Frontier day, with the result that the exhibition this year was accompanied by very little brutality. We are also members of the American Humane society and the magazine edited by Dr. W. O. Stillman is regularly received.

One phase of the work which has been allowed to escape notice is the time given to the investigation of the cases reported to the county commissioners and by them referred to our humane officer. He has received high praise from them for the very efficient manner in which he has carried on this branch of the work, and through this cooperation, has been able during the storm to relieve a great deal of suffering. One of the pleasant features of the year has been the continuance of the cordial relations between the state bureau of child and animal protection and our own society, and I wish to express our appreciation of the assistance always so cheerfully given by Mr. E. K. Whitehead, secretary of the board.

A Power for Good.

In closing, it is a pleasure to acknowledge the kind spirit manifested by the mayor and commissioners of Colorado Springs, and by the county commissioners in the appropriations which have been made. It is only one more evidence that the El Paso County Humane society has made for itself a permanent place in this community and is recognized as a power for good.

It is impossible to speak too highly of the very faithful and efficient work of our humane officer, W. S. Reynolds. No trouble is too great, no call too strenuous to fail to claim his immediate attention. He is instant in season and out of season and waking or sleeping, his loyalty to the cause of the society is uppermost in his mind. We are indeed fortunate in having a humane officer who brings to the work such an intelligent appreciation of its necessities. Respectfully submitted.

ELIZABETH CASS GODDARD,
President.

Recognized Advantages.

You will find that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has recognized advantages over most medicines in use for coughs and colds. It does not suppress a cough but loosens and relieves it. It aids expectoration and opens the secretions, which enables the system to throw off a cold. It counteracts any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia. It contains no opium or other narcotic, and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult. For sale by all dealers. Adv.

REV. T. S. ROBJENT QUITS MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION

The Rev. Thomas S. Robjent, pastor of All Souls Unitarian church, yesterday tendered his resignation as a member of the Ministerial association, giving as his reason that he does not approve of the methods employed by Billy Sunday, the evangelist, who is to conduct a series of meetings here next summer on invitation of the Ministerial association. His letter of resignation follows:

January 6, 1914.

As I understand that the Ministerial association of this city has completed arrangements for the coming here of the evangelist, Mr. Billy Sunday, I wish in all kindness to withdraw my name from membership in the association. The methods adopted by the evangelist named are so repugnant to my feelings that I feel it would be little short of hypocrisy on my part to remain silent on the occasion of his visit and it certainly would not be good taste to make my protest as a member of the association that is responsible for bringing him to the city. This man makes it a part of his campaign to attack the faith which I hold dear couched in the language of the gutter. I am informed on the best authority that in one of his recent missions he publicly threatened to knock a well-known believer in the higher criticism from the platform. Such methods tend to bring religion into contempt and I can have no part or lot in it.

Very sincerely yours,
THOS. S. ROBJENT.

Money Saved by Making Your Cough Syrup at Home

Take a Few Moments, and Stops a Hard Cough in a Hurry.

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. If you take one pint of granulated sugar, add ½ pint of warm water and stir about 2 minutes, you have as good syrup as money could buy.

If you will then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup, you will have as much cough syrup as you could buy ready made for $2.50. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours. It keeps perfectly.

You will find it one of the best cough syrups you ever used, even in whooping cough. You can feel it take hold—it usually conquers an ordinary cough in 24 hours. It is just laxative enough, has a good tonic effect, and the taste is pleasant.

It is a splendid remedy, too, for whooping cough, spasmodic croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and other healing pine elements. No other preparation will work in this formula.

This plan for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy. The plan has often been imitated but never successfully.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

PAPE'S ST. BREAKS A COLD 24 ONCE

Don't Stay Stuffed-up! End Grippe Misery With Pape's Cold Compound

Relief comes instantly.

A dose taken every two hours until three doses are taken will end grippe misery and break up a severe cold either in the head, chest, body or limbs.

It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages in the head, stops nasty discharge or nose running, relieves sick headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffling! Ease your throbbing head! Nothing in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only 25 cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, and causes no inconvenience. Be sure you get the genuine. Adv.

CITY CAN PURCHASE ELK HERD FOR $800

Government Grants Permit to Bring Animals Here From Wyoming.

Twenty-five elk can be secured for the Pikes Peak region there at an expenditure of not more than $800, according to word received here yesterday from the department of the interior by a special committee consisting of W. S. Dunning, Fred C. Matthews and W. W. Wood. According to the letter, the department will allow the transfer of 25 elk from the reserve north of Sheridan, Wyo., and the Eaton brothers, of the Eaton ranch will attend to the securing and shipping of the animals for a total cost of about $800.

The committee plans to start a campaign for funds for the purpose, as it is thought that the animals would be a great attraction for the region. The matter has been under consideration for some time by the Commercial club which named a special committee. This committee wrote the interior department some months ago but just received the definite answer giving permission to get the animals.

Thanks Society for Recent Resolution

Resolutions passed by the Caledonian society of Colorado Springs congratulating John Gribbel, a magazine and newspaper owner of Philadelphia, on his patriotism in acquiring certain manuscripts of Robert Burns, from the public market at a cost of $35,000 and returning them to Edinburgh as a gift to the Scottish nation, have brought results in the way of a reply from Mr. Gribbel. The manuscripts purchased were sold by the London Athenaeum where they were deposited 80 years ago and the sale created a sensation in Scotland and among Scottish societies abroad. The letter which the society has received follows:

1513 Race St., Philadelphia.
December 29, 1913.

Mr. Peter D. Campbell,
Secretary Caledonian Society,
2011 North Nevada Avenue,
Colorado Springs, Colorado.

My dear Sir: I beg leave to thank you for your courteous favor of the 23rd instant.

Will you oblige me by conveying to your executive committee my keen appreciation of their action in the matter of the gift of the Glen Riddel manuscripts to Scotland. I was prepared for the response from the people of Scotland, but the enthusiastic recognition of the gift which has been received from Scotland's sons in the United States and Canada has been a very delightful and prevent surprise to me.

If the gift of these manuscripts shall serve to draw into closer mutual appreciation the people of Scotland and the people of the United States, and also serve to establish a higher standard of duty upon the part of trustees to whom are committed literary treasures which belong to the public, I shall feel amply repaid.

I was as much stirred as any Scotchman last summer when I heard that the trustees of the Liverpool Athenaeum had sold, privately, those priceless treasures. I found them in the market here, in America, being offered, as far as I can determine, by the third man into whose possession they came. I told him the title was so tainted with breach of trust, I would not consider them as my own possession at any price or under any conditions. My sole object in buying them was that they might be preserved in Scotland forever. I am sending you a cutting from the Public Ledger of December 2, that you may have all the facts in the case. Yours truly,

(Signed) JOHN GRIBBEL.

COLDS TO BE TAKEN SERIOUSLY.

Intelligent people realize that common colds should be treated promptly. If there is sneezing, with chilliness and hoarseness, tickling throat and coughing, the latter especially annoying at bedtime, use Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It is effective, pleasant to take, checks a cold, stops the cough which causes loss of sleep, and lowers the vital resistance to disease. CURLY HAIR! Any Child Makes it glossy, soft and abundant

Surely try a "Danderine Hair Cleanse" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time, this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, luster and brightness.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is to the hair what fine showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens the hair, exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed. Adv.

FEARS CONFESSION, ROBBER KILLS WOUNDED COMPANION

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 7.—Shot through the head, probably by his companion, so that death would quickly seal his lips and bar the possibility of his confessing to the police, an unidentified burglar met death early today after a fight in which 11 shots were fired in a dark bedroom in the home of A. A. Hatcher of the city.

Investigation by detectives and officials from the coroner's office indicates that the burglar, shot twice in the body by Hatcher, sank fatally wounded about 20 feet from the Hatcher home; that his comrade then placed the muzzle of a revolver against the left side of the prostrate man's head and sent a bullet into his brain.

A space of only a few inches saved Hatcher, his wife and the two burglars from death or injury by nitroglycerine, the police said. One of the bullets which entered the stomach of the burglar passed through a vest, about two inches from the spot where he carried a bottle of the explosive.

Poor Consumer Again Blamed for H. C. of L.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—Blame was fixed today in the subject of the high cost of living. Despite his clamor at the price of eggs and the price of meat and the price of everything, it is the consumer himself who is responsible for the situation. That is the dictum of the Retail Grocers, the executive officers of whose national association met in Chicago today.

"Did you ever hear a foreigner crying about the high cost of living?" demanded Sol Westerfeld, chairman of the trade relation committee of the national association. "You did not. It is the American or the very much Americanized foreigner who does the shouting. Your real foreigner and he is to be found in practically every neighborhoods—may be a great meat eater; but when meat is high he cuts down his supply."

S. W. Straus, a banker, stated that he would endeavor to bring about a conference of the officers of the grocers' association and representatives of the American Society for Thrift, of which he is chairman of the organization committee. The idea of the organization is to raise the standard of individual thrift.

Pres. Tener Hits 'Feds' Makes Plea for Majors

Baseball No Trust, Reserve Clause Legal, Says National League President in First Statement

CINCINNATI, Jan. 7.—President John K. Tener of the National league, after a meeting of the directors of his organization today issued a statement which he prophesied that public opinion would be on the side of organized baseball in case war is waged by the Federal league.

Pointing out that the Federal league attacks upon organized baseball have been confined to two points; one that the reserve clause was invalid and the other that the parties to the national agreement are members of a trust, President Tener voiced his opinion that neither charge could be considered seriously. The statement follows:

"Baseball today owes its popularity and very existence to organization. Such organization alone has developed and will preserve and perpetuate the game to and for the American people. Nevertheless organized baseball is being attacked by those and those only who desire to reap commercial benefits thereby.

Organization Is Best.

"Today, however, finds baseball more thoroughly organized than ever and therefore better able to withstand and combat the attacks. The Federal league does not base its attacks upon an allegation that the public has not been given good, clean, high class baseball or that the players have not been fairly treated or paid commensurate salaries, but it endeavoring to induce players to break their contracts and seeks to excuse and justify its conduct upon two legal points, namely, the alleged illegality of the reserve clause in the players' contracts and the general statement that organized baseball constitutes a trust. I mean by this that the Federal league has officially announced that it will test the reserve clause in the courts, and failing to justify its contention of illegality it will then seek to have organized baseball investigated and dissolved as a trust.

"But such a threatened war on organized baseball begun by promoters simply for financial gain and based on broken contracts of players, takes no account of the real loving public or the real welfare of our national game; and I believe the disapproval of such a war at the bar of public opinion will count far more against this movement and its promoters than any technical decision in the courts, even though such courts should again uphold the legality and equity of the reserve clause.

Contracts Are Legal.

"In point of fact it is well known that the legality of the present form of contract between the league and players was attacked but its validity in law and equity was sustained by the supreme court in Pennsylvania in the Lajoie case. With respect to the allegation that neither the National or American league or both of them as parties to the national agreement are legal combinations or trusts, in restraint of trade or in violation of antitrust statutes, it is difficult to take such declarations seriously. Experience has demonstrated that this national agreement existing between, and satisfactory to, all leagues, has done more to place our national game foremost among all outdoor sports the world over than any other influence. Under the provisions of this agreement a player has his day in court and through the national commission an opportunity is given him for a fair, impartial and thorough hearing to the end that full justice may be done him.

"We naturally and properly, as sanctioned and sustained by our courts of justice, object to players breaking their contracts, but if the proposed Federal league will draw its supply from the growing field of baseball players coming to the front every year it will meet with no opposition from us."

The proposed meeting of the national baseball commission did not take place today, partly owing to the lengthy meeting of the National league directors and partly to the fact that President Tener had to leave for the east.

JACK JOHNSON AND SMITH MAY FIGHT IN OLD MEXICO

World's Championship Bout in Heavyweight Class May Be Staged on July 4 at Tiajuana

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—A prize fight for the heavyweight championship of the world between Gunboat Smith and Jack Johnson, to be held across the Mexican border at Tiajuana, lower California, on July 4 next, just four years from the day Johnson defeated Jim Jeffries, is under serious consideration by the promoter who staged the Smith-Pelkey battle here, on New Years day.

The decision rests with Johnson. He has the offer now, sent him by cable. Smith is willing to bind the match, and the promoter is confident there would be no legal obstacles.

THEY'RE JUMPING TO THE FEDERALS PRETTY RAPIDLY

Brennan and Packard From Majors; Altizer From Ass'n and Krueger From Coast League Latest

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—Ad Brennan, pitcher of the Philadelphia Nationals and Eugene Packard, pitcher of Cincinnati, were in conference here today with Manager Joe Tinker of the local league team, after which Tinker said he expected to sign them. He added that he was after Dave Altizer, shortstop of Minneapolis.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7.—Arthur Krueger, centerfielder for the Los Angeles Coast league team, will be the first coast leaguer to jump from organized baseball to the new Federal league. Krueger said today he would go to the Kansas City Federals under a three year contract.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 7.—Pitcher William Steen of the Cleveland American league club, said tonight that he had been asked to consider a three year contract with the Pittsburg Federal league club. Outfielder Harry Liebold and Catcher O'Neill also have been approached by federal agents but asserted they would remain with the American league.

Jap Baseball Team Would Invade U. S. This Year

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—Private advices received here today report that a baseball team from the University of Keio, in Tokio, Japan, will visit the United States this year for a series of games.

Seven games have been arranged for in this state, and the Keio team is anxious to make engagements with middle western colleges.

Bob McAllister, New California Middleweight

Bob McAllister, the new California middleweight, gives promise of being able to establish himself as a champion in that class which has really had no title holder since Bob Fitzsimmons quit it many years ago for the heavyweight ranks. Tommy Ryan, Hugo Kelly, Billy Papke, Stanley Ketchel, and, latterly, Frank Klaus, have in the last fifteen years set up claims to championship of the class, and each has had his supporters. But Tommy Ryan would never meet Joe Walcott, nor would Ketchel try out his claim to the title in the same ring with Sam Langford, when the Boston terror was in the class. So neither was really more than a "white champion," like the late Luther McCarty, in the heavyweight ranks.

McAllister is a clever boxer, with much knowledge of the game, and those who saw him defeat Young Mike Donovan, in New York, were impressed with his ability. On the other hand, George Chip, who has twice beaten Frank Klaus, must be reckoned with. Chip, who seems to have a lot of common sense, has definitely disclaimed the championship, which some of his friends tried to fasten on him after he beat Klaus. He is willing to box all comers, to see if he can win by defeating all other middleweights. There is a chance that with such contenders as McAllister and Chip a champion may be developed in 1914.

TINKER SIGNS WITH FEDERALS

This photograph shows Joe Tinker, the famous shortstop, signing away his services to the Federal league. By the laws of organized baseball Tinker is the property of the Brooklyn club. His desertion to a league outside the fold is expected to precipitate a bitter baseball war.

ALONG THE SPORTSMAN'S BEAT

The world touring ball players are now in Australia, showing the natives the American game. According to reports the trip has not yet proved a financial success, owing largely to the bad weather. In Japan the weather cut into the profits but the trip was not a losing proposition.

The trip in Manila was shortened for the same reason, but the tourists reached Australia on scheduled time and will lose no games there unless it rains. The tourists played Friday in Brisbane to a big crowd and yesterday 10,000 watched the Americans clash in Sydney.

The Australian stay ends on January 13 and 14 with games at Fremantle, the chief seaport of the western coast of the antipodes.

The next objective is Ceylon, where one game is played on January 24 at Colombo. From that point the tourists go to Egypt, and then work up to Italy.

Comiskey and McGraw will find that their pathfinder would have done better had he booked more time in Japan, the Philippines and Australia, where the weather is perfect for baseball, and shortened the European program, where the weather is too cold for the game.

The advance man gravely booked games for Naples, Rome, Florence and Milan in the month of February, although it will be too cold for baseball at any of these points, excepting Naples. Pitchers will not enjoy the stiff breezes from the Alps that descend on Milan. The weather ought to be excellent for baseball at Monte Carlo, Nice and Marseilles, which are situated in the southern part of France; but scheduling games in Paris in February is a joke. The same thing applies to London and the Irish cities, and the chances are strong that these games will have to be canceled.

If baseball can be played in Paris and London in February, then the major league owners would be able to open the season in Philadelphia on January 1.

Notwithstanding the mistakes of the schedule makers, the world's tourists should at least make expenses, as they had a big roll earned in American exhibition games before ever boarding the Empress of Japan.

None of the tourists will have a kick coming, for few persons can get a chance to travel around the world without it costing them a penny.

Philadelphia fans are worrying lest Jack Coombs, the star boxman who was laid up last season with typhoid fever of the spine will not be able to play this season. Coombs is still wearing a brace for his back but has written from his Connecticut home that he will probably be able to play if he keeps on improving.

Frank Schulte, who won the Chalmers trophy car in 1911, had the misfortune to lose the machine in a fire the other day. He had taken the boat to Florida and a blaze in the garage destroyed the machine.

The plan proposed by Arthur Davis president of the Cotton States league for a class D league for southern Colorado including Colorado Springs is worthy of attention. The matter should be investigated and threshed out before any action is started because two years ago a league was started that lasted less than a month. Patronage decides the matter and patronage must be assured.

Bob Fitzsimmons has said that if they won't let him fight he will have to starve. And yet men have known to stave off starvation by going to work.

The satisfactory settlement of the question of the demands of the players fraternity of the National commission is one more proof that baseball men are broad minded and beginning to realize that the players are the cogs that keep the machine going and grinding out coin for the club owners.

The Federal league has not yet offered Ty Cobb a place. Not having a John D. bankroll it does not care to open negotiations.

Jack Johnson may come back to fight in the U. S., says a report. Here's a chance for Ortie McMarigal and Harry Orchard to be turned loose and given their freedom, if.

Chance Knows Nothing About Hartzell Going to Manage Denver Cubs

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7.—Frank Chance, manager of the New York American league team, said here today he had heard nothing of a proposition to transfer Roy Hartzell, one of his utility men, to Denver as manager next season.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 7.—"I have never considered Roy Hartzell of the New York Americans for manager of the Denver Western league club," J. C. McGill, owner of the Denver club, and the Indianapolis team of the American association, said tonight. "In case I fail to secure my Denver interest, I will not name the manager for the club until late in February."

8,000 Australians See Giants Whip Victorians

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 7.—Eight thousand spectators today saw the New York National league baseball team defeat a Victoria nine in a six-inning game. The locals were outclassed, the score being 18 to 7.

In the second game of nine innings the New York team beat the Chicago nine 12 to 8. The play of the Americans was a revelation to Australian enthusiasts.

JOHNSON CASE UP AGAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—The United States court of appeals today took under advisement the application of counsel of the late Jack Johnson, the negro pugilist, who was sentenced to pay a fine of $1,000 and serve a year in the state penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., will be rendered in about two months, it is expected.

ISSUES CHALLENGE FOR WRESTLING BOUT SOON

M. A. Schubert last night issued a challenge on behalf of Paul E. Moyer for a wrestling bout with Jimmy Scholes, the "Wrestling Fireman." Schubert deposited $100 with the sporting editor of the Gazette as a forfeit and sidebet for the match. It is to be for a finish bout, with rules to all. Scholes must make Moyer's weight—125 pounds.

INDOOR BASEBALL TONIGHT

An indoor baseball game will be played this evening in St. Mary's hall between the Hon. Nine and a picked team.

GOLF TOUR OF WORLD MAY BE UNDERTAKEN BY BRITISH SHARKS

May Stage International Meet at Frisco Fair in 1915; Would Draw Crowds

Ray and Vardon Enjoyed Hike Across America; Give Their Impressions

Traveling through the United States and Canada giving golfing exhibitions must have had its pleasing side to Edward Ray, the golf professional of the Oxhey club in England, notwithstanding that he was not altogether satisfied with some of the things said about him in the American newspapers. Golfing, a British publication, refers to a statement from Ray to the effect that there is talk of a team of British professionals making a tour of the world in 1915, to play in the United States, Canada, Australia and South Africa.

Here is a chance for the athletic managers of the Panama-Pacific exposition in 1915 to lay their plans for a big international golf tournament. If they can plan to hold a big open tournament at the time of year when American professionals can absent themselves from their home clubs, and at the same time can prevail upon a team of British professionals to big on hand, it would make one of the most interesting sporting features in connection with the exposition.

McDermott Best Man.

The writer in Golfing also has the following:

"I asked Ray whom he considered the best player of all whom he had met on the other side, and his answer was that J. J. McDermott, in spite of his indiscretions (of which, by the way, Ray makes very little) and in spite of his ill-success at Brookline, is undoubtedly the best player that the Americans have got.

"McDermott, he says, has all the strokes at his command. During the open championship McDermott was by no means on his best form, but though he was 'up against it' the whole time, he stuck to his guns and finished well up at the close.

"Young Macdonald Smith is another whose play attracted their attention. They consider that he is better than either of his brothers now.

While playing a well-deserved compliment to the brilliance of Ouimet at Brookline, Ray believes that he has not the experience needed to make him a dangerous competitor in the amateur championship here.

Say Evans Best Man.

"Both Vardon and Ray consider Mr. 'Chick' Evans the best of the amateurs on the other side, but this opinion is given under reservation of the claims of Mr. Jerome Travers, whom they had not an opportunity of seeing.

"They were, of course, disappointed by their defeat in the play off with Mr. Ouimet. But they are at one in thinking that they were lucky even to tie for first place, because in the championship proper they played some of the worst golf of the tour.

"The use of irons off the trees is a growing habit in America, which our living column consider to be entirely due to the lack of bunkers and really punishing rough on the American courses.

"What," said Ray, with a chortle, "more than one player in the championship was took a driving mashie from the tees, and was at great pains to explain that he did it because he could keep straighter—and the man couldn't carry more than 130 yards with the thing."

"The hardness of the American courses lends itself to this sort of treatment, because a low cleek shot runs almost as far as a well-hit drive. But, as Vardon says, those players are bound to find themselves at a big disadvantage over here.

"The best courses that they played over in America they consider to be those at Detroit and Cleveland. Myopia is also a fine course in every way except one, but here, contrary to the usual experience, the bunkering is, if anything, rather overdone at least, that is Ray's opinion."

WOULD PUT C. S. IN BALL LEAGUE

Southern Colorado Would Be Field for Six-Club Organization

Pres. Davis of Cotton States League Here to Boost Plan for Game

Organized baseball for Colorado Springs is the plan proposed by Arthur Davis, president of the Cotton States league who is in Colorado Springs for his health. Davis proposes to organize a six-club circuit consisting of Colorado Springs, Pueblo, Trinidad, Rocky Ford, La Junta and Canon City, which will be ranked as a Class D league, providing a salary limit of $1,200.

Davis will send out letters to commercial organizations in the cities named this week, asking their opinion on the matter and putting the matter up to them in a businesslike manner. Davis himself will have no interest in any club in the league as his idea is to have each town own and control its club.

A number of local fans have become interested in the proposition but as yet nothing definite has been done here and probably won't until the views of the other cities in the league have been secured.

An attempt was made to organize a league of this caliber in southern Colorado in the spring of 1912 and Colorado Springs was included. Ira Bidwell had charge of the organization and for a time it appeared as if the public would make it pay but the playing ability of the members of the teams did not materially aid the organization.

Western league baseball was taken out of Colorado Springs in 1906 because the city would not support the club.

But what has happened in the past does not necessarily indicate that league baseball would fail here in the future. As far as advertising goes it is certain that Colorado Springs would be benefited by it. The fans want good baseball—that is true. Whether there are enough of them who would pay to see baseball every day is a question. A professional baseball club takes money to run it and the money must come from the turnstiles.

Mr. Davis is an experienced baseball man and believes that the people will get behind him in his plan when they understand it. A meeting of fans and all those interested in sport may be called here soon to determine the advisability of Colorado Springs going into the league.

Put league ball here and the Zoo team could not exist. The question must be decided within the next few weeks because Alderman Coughlin, owner of Zoo park, is starting on his plans for the 1914 team.

HAWAIIAN KING OF SWIMMERS

Duke Kahanamoku, the marvelous Hawaiian swimmer, who was truly the greatest aquatic star of 1913. From June 11 to August 6 the duke lowered no less than eight records, his most notable performance occuring on July 5, when he disposed of Daniel's world's record time of 5:44-5 seconds for the indoor hundred yards, four turns, by grinding the distance in 5:43-5 seconds, with only one turn. The Hawaiian excelled at distances ranging from 50 yards to 440 yards.

LURE OF RING DRAWS LANKY BOB TO ROPES

Oldest Scrapper in Game Denied His Comeback?

Fitzsimmons One of the Great Men of Squared Circle; What Will He Do

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7.—Many surprises are sprung in connection with pugilism from time to time, but the news that the lure of the roped and rosined platform has unsettled veteran Bob Fitzsimmons comes pretty near to being the premier sensation of the year just closed.

The pity of it is that Fitzsimmons seems to be terribly in earnest about it. In his plea to be given a chance to show what he can do, he does not claim that he is as good as ever, or even advance the argument that he feels he has one good fight left in him.

He simply reasons that the present day heavies are a bunch of incapables and begs for an opportunity to show that he is not undervaluing them.

What causes me to lay special stress on Fitzsimmons' earnestness in this connection is the fact that while other "exempts" among the big fellows have spoken from time to time of getting back in the game they always weakened and made denials when they saw the things they said in print.

The thing of getting an itch to tread the boards again after years of retirement is a disease and it disappears very quickly when the fellow afflicted with it sees that he has become a mark of curiosity to the public and a mark of ridicule for the critics.

If you don't believe me, ask Jim Jeffries, Tom Sharkey and a few others.

Fitz Oldest In Game.

Fitzsimmons is with one exception the oldest ex-champion of the world in captivity, his senior being John L. Sullivan. Bob has passed the half century mark and, while his earlier exploits, even in America, smacks of looking back into another life.

The writer saw him in his first bout in this country. That was when he whipped Billy McCarty at the California club, San Francisco, about 23 years ago. I saw him win the middleweight championship from Jack Dempsey at New Orleans and the heavyweight championship from Jim Corbett at Carson. I saw him lose his heavyweight title to Jeffries and I saw him in the return match in San Francisco. I saw him box Gus Ruhlin at Madison square and even at that time—it was 18 years ago—I noticed how bunglingly he splashed around in the opening round. He went back to his corner and said to George Dawson who was behind him, "I don't know what's the matter. I seem to have forgotten all I knew."

"You'll be better when you get warmed up," said Dawson encouragingly, and sure enough Bob immediately improved round by round until he laid Ruhlin low with his famous shift in the sith.

I saw him two weeks later with Tom Sharkey at Coney Island. That time Bob profited by his previous experience and did his warming up in his dressing room before entering the ring. And Sharkey lasted about a round and a half.

Saw His Downfall.

I remember that Bob, flushed with success, leaned over the ropes and beckoned vigorously to Jim Jeffries to come up and be challenged but Jim merely laughed and shook his head.

After another few years I saw Bob step 20 spiritless rounds with George Gardner in San Francisco and said to myself right then "Why, what a lamentable falling away."

Two years later it was in 1905—I saw Fitzsimmons slide from his chair in a state of coma after completing 12 rounds with Jack O'Brien and it occurred to me then that it would be a good thing if there was a law debarring pugilists from following their vocation when they were manifestly on the down grade.

It has been the writer's lot to witness such sights.

One was when Peter Jackson crumbled in front of Jim Jeffries and another when Frank Slavin, one of the most rugged and effective fighters of his day, lurched and reeled this way and that under the influence of punches administered by Joe Butler, a negro heavyweight.

But the saddest sight I saw in that line was merely a photograph of such a scene in far away Australia. It depicted Bob Fitzsimmons flat on his back in the strong glare of the antipodean sun, his features as strongly marked as those of a dead Indian on a bier and over him the form of Bill Lang, a man who has been licked by Corbett, Fitzsimmons, Jeffries, Sharkey, Ruhlin, Jackson, Slavin, Choynski, Kid McCoy, Tom Cleary, Joe Choynski, Jack Dempsey, Joe Walcott, Joe Gans, Terry McGovern, Young Corbett, Jack Root, Kid McCoy, Jack Johnson, Stanley Ketchel, Jim Flynn, Sam Langford, Jack Dillon, Billy Papke, Battling Nelson, Jack Britton, Ad Wolgast, Willie Ritchie, Packey McFarland, Harry Lewis, Joe Rivers, Jack Blackburn, Jack Dempsey, Jack Dillon

NEW YORK MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—Variable price changes and moderate dealings continued the chief characteristics of today's stock market, in contrast to the activity and strength of the previous day.

Union Pacific moved irregularly the greater part of the session with some gain in the preferred stock and some weakness in the convertible issues. Baltimore & Ohio common sold off in the early dealings, little more than recovered later, with a gain in the preferred. The weakness of New York Central suggested apprehensions of dividend stability.

There was some selling at intervals of other railway shares, part or absolutely control of which is invested in larger companies, on the theory, apparently, that these issues may ere long be offered in the open market as a result of the various "segregation plans" now said to be in contemplation. Intermittent pressure was exerted against United States Steel and Amalgamated Copper on trade reports of an adverse character.

In the main the best prices of the day were scored in the final hour, when the list showed some activity in the shares of western roads and several industrials including International Harvester, which made a sudden advance of 5 points. The late movement also witnessed a revival of interest at higher prices in some of the obscure specialties.

The only feature of the irregular bond market was the active dealings in Union Pacific convertibles. In government issues, Panama 3's gained ¼ per cent on call. Total sales par value were $2,900,000.

CHICAGO MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—After reaching an export basis, wheat today took an upward slant. The market closed steady at a net advance of ⅛@⅝ to ⅞. Corn finished ⅛@⅜ to ⅝@¾ off, and oats unchanged to ⅛ lower. Provisions wound up with a gain of a shade to 17½.

Export dealers bought a considerable quantity of hard winter wheat in Chicago today, and further bids were made close to a working basis. The situation was said to be similar a St. Louis, and there were advices that some export flour had been sold by clearances of wheat and flour at the Minneapolis mills. Besides, actual clearances of wheat and flour at the Atlantic seaboard were on a generous scale, and there was a disposition on the part of many speculators to agree with a suggestion from a high authority that prices the world over were about at a minimum below which growers would not sell except after a long wait.

Lowest prices for the month were touched by wheat early in the day owing to bearish cables and as a result of depression in corn. Rumors of serious financial trouble in Brazil had a transient effect also, but every influence of a discouraging sort was more than offset when export buying began to stimulate the market.

Stiff margin calls brought on heavy liquidation by miscellaneous holders of corn. Shorts seized the opportunity and grabbed profits on millions of bushels. Speculative selling then led to renewed weakness, but the market later developed a stubborn tone, partly because of signs of a better demand for spot delivery. Oats sympathized with the downturn in corn and proved more elastic in recovery. Shorts though lively were not so aggressive as in corn.

Provisions finally ranged higher after a sag due to declining prices for corn and hogs. Offerings were all well taken, chiefly by representatives of the packers.

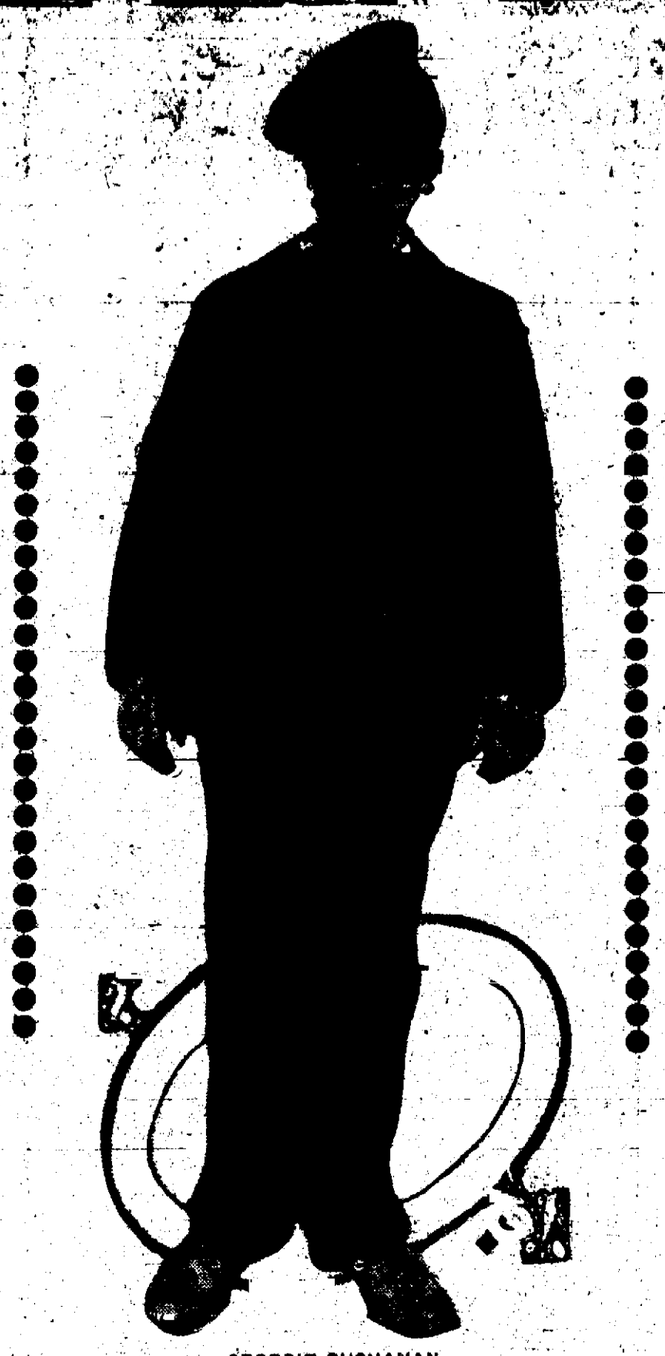
MME. ALIETTE A. DE CARRIERE

Famed throughout Europe as the "Bessarabian beauty," is in New York to push her fight for a dower right in the $10,000,000 estate left by Nelson Taylor, who blew out his brains after the beauty he had made his wife shattered his romance by returning to Europe for, it is said, the love of another man. Taylor's home was in South Norwalk, Conn., and it is there that the fascinating woman has filed her petition in the probate court.



GEORGIE BUCHANAN

Aged 15, who has served three years before the mast on all manner of craft to help his parents. The boy has sailed all but the Arctic and Antarctic oceans; he has been to South America, Sweden, Australia, New Zealand and Newfoundland and many other countries. Georgie considers a sailor's life the hardest kind of a lot, and advises American boys to discard any idea of following the sea. He says he will continue the life because it is the only thing he knows how to do.

GREAT UPROAR IN PARLIAMENT

Ruthenians Made Other Austrian Members Stop Their Ears and Leave

From the London Telegraph.

VIENNA.—For several hours recently the Austrian parliament witnessed an uproarious scene quite unique in its way among the many disorderly spectacles which this body has from time to time produced. The noisy display afforded by a section of the deputies was occasioned by a motion brought forward by a Ruthenian member for the suspension of the sitting in order to give an opportunity for a consultation with the other party chiefs as to the introduction of electoral reforms into the local diet of Galicia.

Count Stuergkh, the premier, rose to oppose this motion, which was of a merely obstructive nature, and in the course of a long speech described the efforts made by the government to accomplish electoral reform in Galicia and to achieve a final settlement between the two races, Poles and Ruthenians, who inhabit that province of the Austrian empire. The premier appealed to the Ruthenians not to disturb by obstructive tactics the favorable feeling entertained in Galicia for this settlement.

During Count Stuergkh's speech came shrill whistling had already been heard in the chamber. When he concluded his address the storm burst in earnest, and the Ruthenian deputies, in no wise moved by the premier's words, commenced the furious demonstration for which they had obviously come fully prepared.

Telephone bells, electric alarms, a complete bell ringing apparatus and two enormous automatic clappers combined, with the banging of desk lids and unearthly and melancholy sound of what seemed to be a sort of ship's siren, to create a perfectly unbearable shindy, which increased in intensity every moment.

The parliamentary ushers hurried in and began rapidly to distribute cotton to the other deputies, which the latter stuffed into their ears, and so managed to deaden the horrible noise to some extent. But not altogether, and finally the non-Ruthenian members had to confess themselves beaten and take to flight. Departing, they left the Ruthenians masters of the field.

This appalling concert of cacophony lasted three hours, but when the president of the chamber, Dr. Sylvester, appeared in the tribune and declared the sitting suspended, the noise ceased suddenly, as if by magic. Afterwards the party leaders met and held a consultation to consider, among other things, the best means of ending the Ruthenian obstruction.

DUMBWAITER BABY ELEVATOR

From the Louisville Times.

John and Mary married impecuniously on $30 a week and went to live in a "walk-up" apartment out south of Broadway. They live two flights up and there is no elevator, hence the "Walk-Up Apartments." Then the baby came, and besides adding to the family, added to the impecuniosity. Ingenuity went far toward solving the problems of living for two in an inexpensive place; baby strained that ingenuity further.

At first it was no impossible task, for John or Mary either, to carry the youngster upstairs, but he grew, as babies will, and Mary's back became weary daily as she carried him up. What was to be done? Oh, for an elevator!

The dumbwaiter! Of course! Thereafter when Mary and the baby came in baby was put in the dumbwaiter. Then Mary walked upstairs and hoisted baby. Baby liked it, Mary liked it, and if you don't like it, that doesn't matter.

"The Land That Lures"

Most of us think of the Pacific Northwest as a land of snow and cold at this time of the year.

This is a mistaken impression for the whole west coast of our country is kept at an even temperature the year round by the Japan Current of the Pacific.

In January the vegetation everywhere is green and inviting. The beautiful cities of Portland, Tacoma and Seattle are especially attractive now.

Passed January 7, 1914.
CHARLES L. M'KESSON,
President of the Council
Attest: CHAS CHAPMAN,
City Clerk.
Approved January 7, 1914.
CHARLES L. M'KESSON,
Mayor.
SEAL

I HEREBY CERTIFY, That the foregoing Ordinance, entitled "AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND AN ORDINANCE ENTITLED "AN ORDINANCE RELATING TO A LICENSE TAX ON TELEPHONE, TELEGRAPH, ELECTRIC LIGHT, STREET RAILWAY AND POWER POLES AND WIRES," was introduced and read at a regular meeting of the City Council, held on December 24, 1913. That said ordinance was passed at a regular meeting of the City Council of said City, held on the 7th day of January, 1914, and the same was published in full in the Colorado Springs Gazette, a newspaper published and in general circulation in said City, at least ten days before its passage.
IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of the City this 7th day of January, A. D. 1914
CHAS. CHAPMAN
City Clerk.
SEAL

AN ORDINANCE

Colorado Springs, Colo, Jan 7 1914.
The following form of Ordinance was introduced and read at a regular meeting of the City Council held on Jan 7, 1914 and was ordered published
CHAS CHAPMAN,
City Clerk.

AN ORDINANCE
RELATING TO THE HEATING OF STREET CARS
Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Colorado Springs.
Section 1 STREET CARS MUST BE EQUIPPED WITH HEATING APPLIANCES After August 1, 1914, whenever the street temperature is below forty degrees above zero Fahrenheit it shall be unlawful for any person firm or corporation to operate in this city any street car, for transportation of passengers, which is not fully equipped with heating appliances in good working condition sufficient to maintain the temperature in such car and the front vestibule thereof at a minimum of not less than fifty degrees above zero Fahrenheit
Section 2 OPERATOR MUST KEEP CAR HEATED. It shall be the duty of every person in charge of operating a street car equipped as above provided when carrying passengers to keep the temperature inside of such car heated to a minimum temperature of not less than fifty degrees above zero Fahrenheit, when the temperature outside of the car is below forty degrees above zero Fahrenheit
Section 3 POLICE MAKE INSPECTIONS It shall be the duty of the police officers of the city when the temperature upon the street is below forty degrees above zero Fahrenheit to inspect all street cars being operated for the carrying of passengers in this city to see that the provisions of this ordinance are complied with
Section 4 PENALTY Any person, firm or corporation, or any operator of a street car violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall, on conviction be fined not less than five dollars ($5.00) nor more than one hundred dollars ($100.00) for each offense and every day that a car shall be operated after August 1 1914, whenever the street temperature is below forty degrees above zero Fahrenheit without being equipped with heating appliances as above provided, shall be a separate offense
Section 5 This ordinance shall be published as required by the Charter and shall take effect and be in force from and after ten days after its final passage

LAND IN ROME AT $450 A FOOT

Record Prices in European Cities Are Less Than New York's

From the Constructions News

In the big cities of the old world highest value seems to belong to property in Rome. Here is where a value of $450 a square foot is found, and the land is not used for an income producing building, but includes the property of the German embassy to Italy

Business property in Rome does not bring nearly this high price In the principal centers of offices and shops the values do not amount much above $200 a square foot In Berlin is a property which recently sold for $190 a square foot and thereby established a new high record value for real estate in that city

The record price for New York city property is held by a small plot popularly known as No 1 Wall street the Broadway number of which is 86, fronting 19 10 on Broadway and 39 10 on Wall street Its high average of about $560 a square foot paid in 1905 is due both to its strategic position and small size

In France in what are regarded as the most valuable locations prices quoted on six buildings vary from $150 to $280 a square foot Generally speaking the price of building land in Paris during the last 12 or 15 years has doubled in the most famous quarters, and rents have doubled in the same period

Although Belgium has reduced the working day of its coal miners to nine hours, the enforcement of the law has not apparently affected the production.

GOLDEN CYCLE MINING CO. WILL MEET JAN. 29

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Golden Cycle Mining company will be held January 29, in West Virginia, where it is incorporated. The meeting is a mere formality as the company is owned largely by John T. Milliken of St. Louis. The Golden Cycle company, which operates one of the largest cyanide mills in the west, and has a heavy producing mine in the Cripple Creek district, was first incorporated in 1895 and the first president was the late David H. Moffat.

A DIFFERENCE IN WORKING HOURS

A man's working day is 8 hours. His body organs must work perfectly 24 hours to keep him fit for 8 hours' work. Weak, sore, inactive kidneys can not do it. They must be sound and healthily active all the time. Foley Kidney Pills will make them sound and well. You can not take them into your system without good results following their use. They are tonic in action, quick in results, and contain no habit forming drugs. Try them. Robinson Drug Co. Adv

LOCAL CIGAR STORE UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

The cigar business at 13 North Tejon has just been taken over by Glen Martin and Phillip Weidemaier, both well known men in this city. Carpenters and painters have been busy for the last week remodeling and refinishing the store very attractively. A high grade stock of cigars and candies is to be maintained.

Mr. Martin says he will conduct the store along clean business principles and extends a cordial welcome to all. 13 has no dread for us, said Mr. Martin last night, as we intend to make a success of the business from the start. The new store will be known as the "Luxury" and from the present appearance of the interior it will live up to its name.

NEW YORK, January 8th, 1914.

Dear Mary:—
"And their principal clothes as a rule through the nose
And a patch of red paint on their forehead."

We are going them several better aren't we dear, these primitive ancestors of ours who because "the males they lived in was so fine", had to indulge their love for finery entirely in necklaces, anklets and other glittering ornaments.

This little illustration shows us that another precedent has been shattered this season. Do you remember how very vulgar our grandmothers considered it to wear imitation jewelry? What would they say to-day? They would fairly gasp for lack of expressive words I am sure.

However, there is a word to be said in favor of this new, dear dirt; it is better to wear a string of Job's tears and have them harmonize with your gown than a chain of matchless pearls that are not in keeping.

Women love these trifles for their becomingness, their mystery and alluring charm. What has price to do with it anyway; we have banks and other receptacles for our wealth; why should we wear it around our necks or on our fingers?

The savages of course were compelled to suspend their wealth from their persons—but—they had no pockets. What excuse have we? Merely a matter of refinement, breeding and taste, after all.

I thought dear this ay plain head dress of pearls might please you for your costume ball, it is so Swedish. You might go as the Queen of Sheba or Cleopatra.

Yours seriously,
ADELE.

THOUGHT A WIDOW WISE ENOUGH

From the New York World.

Rosa Mauro, 24 years old, arrived on the Veloce liner Stampalia. She said she was on her way to Trinidad, Colo., to be married to Pasquale Veltri. The boarding officers decided to send her to Ellis Island until they could find a chaperon to take her to her destination.

But the inspector suddenly thought a thought.

"Why are you in deep mourning?" he asked.

"I am a widow," she replied. "My husband died three years ago."

"A widow," exclaimed the inspector. "Rosa, you're discharged. Widows are wise enough to take care of themselves."

The Travelers Aid society put her on a train for the Rockies.
